Specialist Claims Mysterious Parasite Causes Appendicitis; Can Be Prevented

BY DAVID P. SENTNER
(Copyright, 1928, by I. N. S.)

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Dec. 20—A mysterious parasite, the "pinworm" so small that an army of them could pass abreast through the eye of a needle, is responsible for appendicitis, America's most prevalent major operation disease.

This revolutionary theory, supported by practical observations and research work over a period of 25 years, was revealed today by Dr. Frank C. Henry, eminent surgeon, and authority on appendicitis.

Not only is Dr. Henry convinced that this black prince of bacteria is the cause of appendicitis but he believes the affliction can be prevented, if the proper educational campaign is waged.

"Not only is appendicitis caused originally by pinworms, according to my experience," said Dr. Henry, "but it is quite likely that the disease is spread by them, through kissing or contact between the patient and relatives or friends."

Dr. Henry cited the frequency of cases in his experience where one member of a family suffered an appendicitis attack and shortly afterwards several other members of the same family had the disease.

In the thousands of appendicitis cases he has treated, Dr. Henry said he had invariably,

SMITH OUSTER HEARING HELD BEFORE JUDGE

Proposed Removal of Recorder Taken Under Advisement by Court

POINT OF LAW RAISED

Finding of State Examiners' Checks Reported in Testimony

A disagreement on a point of law ended the hearing on the ouster proceedings against Charles E. Smith, missing county recorder, in common pleas court this morning.

Judge George H. Scofield, before whom the hearing was held, took the case under advisement after allowing Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedemann and Prosecuting Attorney-elect Alfred Donithen three days to prepare a brief on their contentions.

The disagreement arose between Judge Scofield and the attorneys for the state after testimony of state's witnesses had been taken. Judge Scofield held that the complaint served at Smith's last place of residence was not legal because it did not contain the signatures of voters signing the original petitions for Smith's removal from office.

Attorneys State Views

Wiedemann and Donithen held that the signatures on the petitions were not necessarily a part of the complaint and that it was only necessary to file them with the court. Sheriff James A. Deal, who served a copy of the complaint at Smith's former residence here, testified that there was not a list of the signatures attached to the complaint he served.

Decision in the case may be held up indefinitely, Judge Scofield said in court that until he was convinced that the signatures were not necessarily a part of the complaint he would hold his present view of the case. The result may be that the office will never be declared vacant, at least by the common pleas court.

New Feature Revealed

A sidelight on the Smith case, which heretofore had not been made public, came to light this morning in the testimony of T. W. Jones, of the bureau of public accounting, who inspected the recorder's records last spring.

Jones testified that during his examination of the records he found seven checks totalling $135 that were payable to Charles E. Smith and were signed by Harry Riley, state examiner, who audited Smith's books

Amanullah's Loyal Troops Still Hold Capital City

Enraged at "westernization", orders of King Amanullah and his royal consort, Queen Sourya (inset), units of Afghanistan's army rebelled and chased their majesties into hiding. The photo shows a patrol of Sepoys on duty near Kabul in the autumn of 1925, at which time Amanullah had another uprising on his hands.

Wireless Communication Reestablished with Kabul in Mountain Kingdom of Afghanistan; Important International Events May Result from Revolt

MOSCOW, Dec. 20—King Amanullah's loyal troops still hold Kabul, capital of Afghanistan, according to a radiogram direct from that city today. After an interruption of more than 24 hours, wireless communication with Kabul was established by the Tashkent station at 2:50 o'clock this morning.

LONDON, Dec. 20—Important international events may result from the outcome of the revolt under way today in the isolated mountain kingdom of Afghanistan.

Both England and Soviet Russia are keen rivals for the friendship of the Afghan government because of the country's strategetic importance upon the Indian-Russian frontier. Even before the Communists gained control in Russia, the old Imperial Russian government had coveted Afghanistan as a "friendly gateway to the south."

Fragmentary reports, based mainly upon rumors current in Peshawar, Bombay and other Indian cities, said fighting was still in progress near Kabul and Jalalabad between the Shinwaris (native tribesmen) and troops loyal to King Amanullah.

Two reports concerned the Afghan foreign minister. One said he had been seized and shot; the other that he was being held as a hostage. The war minister was reported to have been seized with a detachment of troops and held prisoner at Jalalabad.

EZEKIEL BROWN FATALLY HURT NORTH OF CITY

Death of Brush Ridge Man Occurs at Pennsylvania Railroad Crossing

ALONE AT TIME

Well-Known Farmer Was Returning to Home After Marion Visit

Ezekiel Brown, 78, of Brush Ridge was instantly killed at 11:30 o'clock this morning when a south bound Pennsylvania freight train struck the automobile in which he was riding, at the Bucyrus rd. crossing.

Mr. Brown was alone at the time of the accident. Whether he failed to see the approaching train is not known. He was returning to his home in Brush Ridge from Marion where he had spent part of the morning.

Car Demolished

The Essex coach that Mr. Brown was driving was demolished in the collision with the locomotive and was carried some distance south of the crossing where the accident occurred.

The body was taken to Gunder's undertaking establishment in an ambulance.

Mr. Brown was one of Marion county's best known farmers and landowners. For the past several years he has lived a retired life at his farm home in Brush Ridge.

According to members of the family today Mr. Brown would have observed his seventy-ninth birthday anniversary next month.

Funeral Not Arranged

Surviving the victim of the crash are the widow, Mrs. Alice G. Brown, a son, Frank A. Brown, of Havre, Mont., and a daughter, Mrs. J. H. Robinson, Upper Sandusky rd.

No funeral arrangements have been made.

Mr. Brown was a member of the Baptist church congregation of Brush Ridge.

PUBLIC INVITED TO BANK RECEPTION

Remodeled Fahey Quarters To Be Open from 5 to 9 O'Clock Tonight

Quarters of the Fahey Banking Co., which have recently undergone extensive remodeling, are to be formally opened with a public reception from 5 to 9 o'clock tonight. Plans for the reception have been completed by officials of the bank, who have extended an invitation to all Marion residents to call and inspect the new rooms and equipment.

Remodeling and enlarging of the banking quarters began May 1 and was recently completed. A new front has been installed, the banking quarters enlarged and complete new furnishings installed.

One new safety and security vault has been installed on the ground floor, while a storage vault for books and records has been constructed in the basement.

The banking company now has one of the most complete and up-to-date homes in this section of the state.

The Fahey Banking Co. is one of the oldest financial institutions in the city. It was founded by Timothy Fahey in 1865.

A. C. Edmonson, president of the company, was born with the bank in 1862, when he started as cashier.

FEAR TURMOIL IN SENATE AS BILLS COME UP

Final Action on Both Big Navy and Peace Pact May Be Delayed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—The administration's plan to force action on the "big navy" bill, prior to ratification of the Kellogg anti-war treaty, today threatened to provoke a tumultuous parliamentary session in the senate.

Opponents of the "big navy" bill have announced they will block action on the measure until after the senate has acted on the treaty, by which some 50 nations combine with the United States in denouncing war and in pledging themselves to the arbitration of all differences. In the face of this opposition, it was apparent that final action on both the bill and the treaty will be postponed until after the Christmas recess.

In Unique Tangle

The treaty situation presented a unique parliamentary tangle. The administration supporters, led by Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, were in favor of postponing action on it until the new year. So too, were leaders of the irreconcilable group which is fighting its unconditional ratification. On the other hand, an insurgent-Democratic coalition opposed to enactment of the "big navy" bill—sought to force its immediate consideration. This coalition was led by Senators Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, and King, Democrat of Utah, both of whom favor ratification of the treaty.

As the senate assembled, the supporters and opponents of the naval measure planned a parliamentary race. The navy men planned to sponsor a motion calling for immediate consideration of the new cruiser program while the opposition

ATTA BOY, SANTA!

Early Pay for 10,000 State Employes Is Distributed

COLUMBUS, Dec. 20—Essaying the role of Santa Claus, the state will broadcast good cheer this week by issuing approximately $250,000 to nearly 10,000 state officials and employes in the form of advance pay. This money is not due until Dec. 31 or Jan. 1. It is being distributed early so as to permit about 4,500 persons in state departments, 3,500 institutional employes and 1,500 officials and employes in the state highway department to spend a portion of this money in preparing for Christmas.

THREE MILLION FLU CASES ANTICIPATED

Epidemic Crosses Mississippi into Mid-West Districts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—Three million cases of influenza by Christmas eve was the gloomy prospect for the holidays faced by America today.

Public health bureau officials said if the epidemic continues to increase at the rate observed since Dec. 1, officially reported new cases, representing less than one-fifth of the total, will number about 500,000 for the week ending Dec. 22.

The epidemic has crossed the Mississippi in earnest, and is spreading to the big industrial centers of the mid-west, accounting for the jump of reported cases from 40,500 on Dec. 8, to 141,077 for the week ending Dec. 15.

Heretofore the epidemic has been sweeping through the sparsely settled territory between the Rocky Mountains and the Mississippi, after having run its course on the Pacific coast. On Dec. 1, there were only 10,000 cases. A large per cent in California.

Fear that as the flu moves eastward its virulency will increase was expressed by public health officials. In California the mortality rate was low.

SITUATION BETTER

Continued Improvement Shown in Local Health Reports

Reports from city and county health and school officials today indicate that the influenza epidemic which has gripped Marion county for several days is waning.

Attendance in city and county schools is reported to be returning to normalcy after being seriously decreased for the last week by the widespread disease.

City and county schools will close Friday afternoon for the annual Christmas vacation. County schools will reopen Monday, Dec. 31. City schools will remain closed for a two weeks' vacation.

VISITS MOTHER

Mrs. Coolidge in Northampton, Mass., for Brief Holiday

NORTHAMPTON, MASS., Dec. 20—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge today visited her mother, Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, who has been ill for more than a year in Cooley-Dickinson hospital.

Mrs. Coolidge made the trip from Washington to bring cheer to her mother at Christmas-time. She will return to Washington on Friday.

Mrs. Goodhue was said to be weaker but her condition was not considered critical.

A state trooper was assigned to guard Mrs. Coolidge during her visit in Massachusetts.

AKRON TRAFFIC TOLL

AKRON, Dec. 20—Akron's traffic toll for 1928 reached 53 today with the deaths of two men who succumbed this morning to injuries suffered in the last few days. The victims were George Wilson, 77, and Ralph Warman, 30.

CIVIC GROUPS SEEK CLOTHING FOR POOR HERE

Temporary Organization To Conduct Activities Is Formed

Formation of a temporary organization of Marion welfare and civic groups and an appeal to the people of Marion to contribute used overcoats, shoes and seasonable underwear for the city's needy featured a meeting yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. dining room.

Representatives from the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., St. Mary's church, Marion County Humane society, county health department, Boy Scouts, Marion Ministerial association and county schools attended the meeting and named Earl N. Hale, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., temporary chairman. The meeting followed a luncheon.

Called by Hale

The meeting was called by Hale to acquaint the various organizations of the city with the work done by other groups.

Citing the need for used clothes for Marion's poor during the winter and the calls made on City Relief Officer Charles M. Tobin for aid, Attorney James H. Erwin of the Humane society urged the organization to consider an appeal to the public for clothes.

Arrangements later were made with Tobin to accept the clothing and plans are being made for its acceptance. Scout Executive Walter C. Brown pledged the co-operation of the Boy Scouts of the city in the collection of the clothing.

Scouts Will Call

Residents of the city have been asked to call Scout Executive Brown at phone No. 1863 or Tobin at No. 4103 if they have clothing. Scouts will then be sent to gather the clothing.

It was the concensus of opinion that with Tobin's grasp on local relief conditions the distribution of clothing could be accomplished with dispatch and without duplication.

The question of caring for "tramps" also was discussed by the organization.

Another meeting, at which a permanent organization will be effected, will be held Wednesday noon, Jan. 0.

OPTIMISM PREVAILS FOR KING IN LONDON

George Continues To Gain; Nearly Out of Danger

LONDON, Dec. 20—Optimism over the ultimate recovery of King George gained strength this afternoon as the king gained ground.

A consultation of five doctors was held at Buckingham palace beginning at 3 o'clock. Those attending were Sir Stanley Hewett, Lord Dawson of Penn, Sir Humphrey Rolleston, Sir E. Farquhar Buzzard and Sir Hugh Rigby.

It was understood the whole illness was reviewed and that the doctors were debating whether the king had progressed sufficiently to warrant the statement that he is out of danger for the present.

DRIVE IS LAUNCHED TO SEAT ROY WEST

Public Lands Committee Votes 7 to 3 To Report Appointment

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—A drive to get Secretary of the Interior Roy O. West out of the senate's non-confirmation trenches before Christmas was launched today by administration leaders.

Backed by a 7 to 3 favorable report from the public lands committee they hoped to overcome the stiff opposition to West's confirmation before the week is out, but admittedly they face a hard task.

The opposition votes in committee were cast by Senators Walsh, Democrat of Montana, Wagner, Democrat of New York, and Nye, Republican of North Dakota. In the senate proper such a sanguine fighter as Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska is waiting to present his reasons why West should not be confirmed.

MANNERS DIES

Playwright Claimed in New York After Operation

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—Funeral services for J. Hartley Manners, whose "Peg O' My Heart," brought fame and wealth to him and his wife, Laurette Taylor, will be held with requiem mass at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Church of the Holy Cross. Interment will be private.

Manners, who died yesterday as a result of an operation on Nov. 20, was long regarded as one of America's foremost playwrights. Among his other hits were "The Lonesome Heart," "The House Next Door," "The Girl and Wizard," "The Prince of Bohemia," "The Girl in Waiting," "Out There," "The Harp of Life," "The Wedding of Eve."

Reported Wedding of Girl, 16 Years Old, to Man 56, Probed in Trial Here Today

Walter Henry, Supposed Bridegroom, and Two Others, Held on Charges Filed by Mother of Miss Edna Hickman

Reports that a 16-year-old girl became the bride of a 56-year-old man under questionable circumstances were to be investigated at a hearing scheduled this afternoon in the Marion county juvenile court.

The inquiry was to be a part of the trial of Walter Henry, 56, of 278 Chestnut st., Robert Willis, 32, of North Main st., and Miss Clara Monroe, 21, of 190 West Center st., on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Henry, according to accounts of the case, is the bridegroom in the marriage in question. His bride is said to be Miss Edna Hickman, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Hickman, 293 North Prospect st.

A marriage license was issued to Henry and Miss Hickman in Zanesville on Dec. 15, according to a report received from the probate judge's office there today. On the license Henry gave his address as Chillicothe. Miss Hickman gave her age as 21 and her address as Frane; Henry. Local court authorities say that she is 16.

Although the record of their marriage has not been determined, it is presumed that the ceremony took place shortly after the license was issued.

The girl, according to statements made by police, informed them that she was afraid to return home with Henry, saying Henry "threatened what he would do" to her if she returned.

New Arabic Typewriter Called Greater Achievement Than Old Chinese Machine

CHICAGO, Dec. 20 — How American efficiency methods are being carried to the far quarters of the globe was illustrated by one of the odd exhibits at the National Business show here.

This is the Arabic typewriter, the most recent invention of H. McKeen Jones, also inventor of the Chinese typewriter, equipped with 15 keys for the printing of China's newly adopted phonetic symbols which have greatly simplified the ideographic alphabet.

The Arabic machine, however, according to J. B. Summers who is in charge of the exhibit, presented even more intricate mechanical problems than did its cousin, the Chinese typewriter.

"It was perfected," said Mr. Summers, "only after years of work. The Arabic languages, being read from right to left, call for a reverse of the carriage. As if to make matters worse, the characters are of varying widths and heights, and are written on the line, above, and below the line, and there are few letters that cannot be written in at least four different ways.

"The varying widths of the characters, of course, require uneven spacing, and only by combining two or more characters to form one was it possible to hold the machine down to two shifts. The language contains 658 symbols, of which 190 are represented on a linotype machine and 304 on the typewriter."

Later on, a man can see why he didn't win. He wasn't ambitious.

MARDI GRAS MONTH BEGINS ON JAN. 7

New Orleans Grooming Itself for Full Month of Merrymaking

New Orleans, La., Dec. 20—This rollicking town again is grooming itself for its Mardi Gras—and a full month of merrymaking under the spell of the mystics.

The event, which attracts thousands of outsiders and every citizen of New Orleans like a magnet, falls earlier this season than it has in some years, beginning as it does on Jan. 7, the King's Night. The round of festivities will continue until Mardi Gras Day, Tuesday, Feb 11, the grand finale.

Even now the dens of mystery in Calliope and Roman streets are alive with workmen finishing gaudy and hideous costumes and masks, fitting them, preparing them for the tens of thousands who will join the festivities of Rex, who is king for a day here.

The Twelfth Night Revelers will open the season on Jan. 7, followed by the ball of the Krewe of Aglia the next Saturday. The ball of Nereus and the dance of Les Danseurs come the following week and the ball of Osiris of Isis of the Athenians, of Les Marionettes and the half dozen other orders will follow at intervals of several days.

New Orleans people, who celebrate the carnival religiously every year and who each season strive to make the carnival even gayer than its predecessors, are sure the coming event will be supreme among all carnivals of the Mardi Gras.

Feb 8 marks the first parade of the carnival, when the Knights of Momus will traverse the streets in pageant and give their grand ball in the Athenaeum. The next Saturday will see the ball of the Mystic Club and the Parade of Proteus follows on Monday.

Rex's ball, following a day of promiscuous masking throughout the gayest and brightest day of the carnival, will climax the celebration.

Marion's November School Attendance Shows Improvement Over 1927 Record

eral interesting points in school re brought out in the monthly re- fo. November issued from the in endent's office at Harding school. The report gives a con- ecount of the business end of chool life and mentions rooms in us grade schools that have made al records.

e total enrollment in the city ls which reached 6,247 for the h exceeds by 48 the enrollment of er and by 200 the enrollment of mber, 1927. Attendance in the ls dropped one per cent as ist that of the preceding month as better by 2.1 per cent than that of the same month last year.

Tardiness Decreases

One of the interesting figures of the report is the decrease in the number of cases of tardiness. In November this year, 207 were marked as tardy, against 212 in October and 276 last year in November. While the number of students perfect in attendance is fewer by 325 than in October, it is in excess of November, 1927. The number perfect in attendance in November, 1928 reached 3,624, in October, 3,947 and in November of last year, 3,256.

The following rooms had an average of 98 per cent or more in attendance and report no pupils tardy for November: Miss Florabel Clarke, Greenwood, 99.5 per cent; Miss May Hain, Pearl, 99.3; Miss Helen King, Forest Lawn, 99.1; Miss Harriet Christian, Mark, 99; Miss Audrey Bolander, Pearl, 98.9; Miss Etta Carter, Pearl, 98+; Miss Isabelle Stump, Central, 98+; Mrs. Sara Howser, Oakland, 98.4; Miss Elizabeth Conley, Oakland, 98+; Miss Jeannette Hamilton, Greenwood, 98.1, and Miss Clara Kewalke, Greenwood, 98.

Teachers' Visits Listed

Miss Grace Colvin of Central Junior high school leads the list of teachers having visited 10 or more homes during teh mouth, with a total of 20. The others are as follows: Miss Maud Alter, Silver, 17; Miss Margaret Forry, Silver, 17; Donald Lee, Silver, 17; Miss Isabel Uncapher, Oakland, 17; Miss Elizabeth Conley, Oakland, 15; Mrs Ruby Craner, Olney, 14; Miss Pauline Knepp, Central, 12; Miss Bessie Snider, Central, 12; Miss Elizabeth Daley, Lincoln, 11; Mrs. Gladys Harris, Glenwood, 11; Miss Ella Kiger, Glenwood, 11; Miss Goldus Bolander, Silver, 10; Miss Florence Resch, North Main, 10; Miss Ruth Gallimore, Oak, 10; Miss DeEmma Hanley, Forest Lawn, 10; Miss Gladys Larson, Oak, 10; Miss Martha Smallwood, Oakland, 10 and Miss Mary Eleanor Vaughn, Silver, 10.

REMODELING WORK NEAR COMPLETION

Curtis & Co. Funeral Home Undergoing Extensive Improvements

Work of remodeling and enlarging the C. E. Curtis & Co. funeral home, East Center st., begun about four weeks ago, is nearing completion. It is thought the quarters will be ready for funeral service after the first of the year.

A seven-stall garage to accommodate the funeral automobile equipment is being built at the rear and an additional room, 31 by 31 feet, is being extended to the rear wall of the home. A three level elevator is being installed and doors and archways are being cut where needed in the interior.

The addition at the rear will be used as a storeroom and the two apartments on the second floor are being refinished to serve as a showroom, in place of the display room at 188 East Center st. The morgue is also being moved upstairs, and new offices are being furnished both upstairs and down. The room formerly used as a morgue is being converted into a slumber room. It has also been arranged for use as a family room when services are held in the chapel. Hangings in the chapel, which is being redecorated, will be in a wood violet shade.

SCHMIDT FUNERAL TO BE HELD IN AGOSTA

Funeral services for Mrs. Ethel Schmidt, who died yesterday at City hospital, will be held at Friday afternoon at 10 o'clock at the M. H. Gunder funeral home and at 2 o'clock at the M. E. church in Agosta. The Rev. M. J. Plotts of Agosta will officiate and interment will be in Agosta cemetery.

NEW ANTI-THEFT DEVICE PREVENTS AUTO STEALING

Chicago—A new anti-theft device providing for setting the license plates of a car in a horizontal position when the car is parked and locked has been invented by a German automotive engineer, according to the Chicago Motor club.

The device is operated by a key in a spring controlling the vertical and horizontal positions of the plates. The theory is that if a thief should succeed in driving the car, the horizontal position of the plates would indicate that the car was stolen.

Clerk, at $35 Per, Gives "Twenty Grand" Alimony

Quintus Spicknall Tells How He Got Rich on Modest Salary

KANSAS CITY, MO.—"Clerk, at $35 per, must pay $20,000 alimony."

Now that's a good deal like the famous editor's definition of a working story—when a man bites a dog it's NEWS! So it isn't surprising that the headline writers almost ran a temperature in handling the unusual divorce case of Spicknall vs. Spicknall; nor that the public literally "ate it up" and cried for more.

One reason for this was that $20,000 was a lot of money for any one to pay in alimony—no matter what salary he had received. The other was the astonishing fact that Quintus Spicknall's weekly pay envelope contained exactly $35 per.

Collects "Twenty Grand"

Was there a fortune in the back to the credit of this modest self-effacing clerk suddenly drawn into the limelight? If so would the beauty who sued him on a "general indignities" charge collect the full "twenty grand?"

Mrs. Jeanette Spicknall, who took the "twenty grand"

There WAS; she DID!

Slowly the facts in the case came to light. Quintus Spicknall's story was the usual one in fiction and the rare one in real life, of the clerk who buys a few shares of stock on a "tip" and watches them skyrocket in value until he is treading the rosy thoroughfare known as "Easy Street." Several years ago he purchased 100 shares in the company for which he worked, a concern the stock of which is now quoted at $1,500 a share. Thus Quintus' position improved, even though he remained a mere clerk at $35 per.

Discord Enters His Home

Cupid claimed him as a victim in the summer of 1925, his marriage to his ex-wife, Jeanette, taking place in Olathe, Kans. A year later a child was born to the couple, a girl whom they named Diana. But discord entered the modest home and steadily got no better. Finally, the pretty Mrs. Spicknall instituted suit for divorce against her spouse, setting forth in her petition that he could—and should—pay the sum of $20,000 in alimony.

Quintus replied with a cross bill that painted his wife as extravagant and nagging. Her answer was to call the attention of Judge Clarence Burney to the coat she was wearing. "It's four years old," she declared, and said nothing more.

Hence the sympathetic judge's order directing Quintus to transfer the sum of $20,000 to his ex-wife's account, at the same time instructing him to pay $75 a month for the maintenance of little Diana.

For Dad—

A NEW PAIR OF GLASSES

Year in and year out, poor Dad, a necktie, socks, slippers; it's so hard to buy something for Dad!

But now we have it—a new pair of glasses! Something nice, yet practical. Something he'll enjoy hour on hour.

The giving of glasses involves no difficulty, no shopping.

Let us tell you about our Christmas Certificate plan.

Daily Proverb—"Even a fool, when he holdeth his peace, is considered wise; and he that shutteth his lips is esteemed a man of understanding."

Over in New York state, a Hornell woman gave birth this week to her eighteenth child, making nine boys and nine girls in the family, all living. That's maintaining the ratio for you!

Apropos of personal liberty, a common pleas judge has denied a Cleveland woman's plea for divorce on the ground that her husband went shaveless over Sunday. "A Daniel come to judgment! Yea, a Daniel!"

The Chicago board of education has $275,000 on hand with which to meet a payroll of $3,500,000 today. That "America First" campaign does not appear to have done much to add to the cheer of the glad holiday season.

New York City is to start a world's championship gabfest December 24 in which the championship title and $1,000 in cash are to go to the entrant who "can talk the most in 129 hours and forty-five minutes." Wonder what her name will be?

While searching about his coop for traces of thieves who stole twelve of his turkeys, a Canadian farmer found a bill-book containing $200 dropped by one of the thieves. At the present-day price of the holiday birds, it looks like a pretty even proposition.

An effort has been launched in Madison to bar from office a woman elected sheriff of Polk county, Wisconsin, on the ground that she violated the corrupt practices act by stating during the campaign that, if elected, she would name her husband as her deputy. It may be a good law, but to hold that it is ground for barring this woman from the office to which she has been elected will hardly appeal to the public as good sense.

The previous "barrel roll" record of 283 was doubled this week by a St. Louis pilot. Now if some expert will explain how a record of hundreds of barrel rolls advances the cause of aviation, we will be willing to sit up and take notice.

It now develops that King Amanullah and Queen Sourlya of Afghanistan didn't have to flee to a fort to escape revolutionists, but merely left Kabul to go hunting. As both reports came by the way of Moscow, it's a toss-up which to believe, if either.

There's no occasion for surprise over the fact that Grover A. Whalen had to borrow a nickel from another man of wealth and a cent from a clerk to pay the six-cent fee when the oath was administered to him as the new police commissioner of New York City. Many men of wealth seemingly get pleasure out of going about without money, possibly feeling that it differentiates them from the fellows who are always seeking to "make a flash."

A Washington court has again cited Harry M. Blackmer for contempt for failing to answer a witness summons in the Teapot Dome conspiracy trial of Harry F. Sinclair, possibly having in mind the seizure of another $100,000 of Blackmer's bonds to add to the $100,000 already seized by the government. One of these days the courts may awaken to the fact that there is such a thing as overdoing this "contempt" business, especially in the case of a man whose extradition has been denied by a foreign government on the ground that he is being sought for a political offense.

The Last of the Year.

The home stretch for nineteen hundred twenty-eight is at hand. In December the sun enters the tropic of Capricorn, and passes the winter solstice. It is during the last of the twelve months of the present-day calendar that the sun reaches a point where it seems to stand still, apparently hesitating, before starting back. Thus it runs, year after year, while the workaday folk go nimbly about their business, without time to marvel.

There really is no month in the calendar without a singular interest. As for December, those in this latitude expect it to bring winter, while nature enters restorative sleep and gathers strength for the resurrection to come later. But this twelfth month has a special human interest. It brings Christmas, the greatest of holidays, the great holiday that is universal in all Christian nations.

At this season the mind and voice and heart of humankind become tuneful in inspired song, to "Hail the King of Bethlehem." December is essentially a child's month, with age becoming vibrant with the spirit that animates the soul with the sweetly simple things of life.

December is a month to which the wise will do their utmost to adapt themselves, whether it be rough or fair weather, in anticipation of the biggest day of the year.

The Boulder Dam Project.

The Boulder Dam measure, providing for an estimated expenditure of $165,000,000 of public funds for the benefit of interests other than those of the general public, has passed both houses of congress and goes to the president for his approval or disapproval.

Measures such as this are somewhat reminiful of the lion on the billboard, which invariably appears to be fiercer, stronger, larger and far more majestic than the animal exhibited behind the bars of the cage under the menagerie top.

We have been given forecasts of what will be accomplished as a result of the work contemplated under the Bolder Dam measure. It is going to make the desert fertile for hundreds of miles. It is going to send vast armies of ambitious settlers into areas where cacti, sagebrush, gophers and rattlesnakes are the only existing forms of life today. It is going to pump water over mountain ranges to assuage the thirsts of parching cities on the Pacific coast. It is going to develop great electric light and power, to make light where darkness reigns and turn thousands of wheels and spindles where none turns now. And best of all, it isn't going to cost the government a cent. It's merely a loan, which will come back to the government with interest.

Maybe so. Let us hope that the prediction proves true, but if it does it will be the first government project of the kind to pay out; the first which does not prove a loss. It's going to be entirely unlike all the projects of the kind, in which millions upon millions of dollars have been squandered, with this exception: it probably will supply a great volume of water to the city of Los Angeles at the great expense of the people of the land.

One day last summer we drove over the famous road from Yellowstone park to Cody, part of which had to be blasted out of the almost perpendicular sides of Shoshone gorge to make possible the transportation of construction material to the site of Shoshone dam, the second highest in the world, but only a pygmy in height or size to what the Colorado river dam will be. The Shoshone dam is 328 feet high, eighty feet wide and 108 feet thick at the bottom and 200 feet wide and ten feet thick at the top. The cost of the construction of the dam itself is said to have been $1,356,585, and we are told by a government guide book that "the value of the crops raised by the use of the stored water since 1908 is approximately $10,000,000." Sounds good, but while the guide book is silent on the subject, it may be said that the government didn't get the $10,000,000, if that amount were realized from crops.

One may drive along the Cody road, which traverses the heart of the Shoshone project, for miles and miles and miles, hour after hour, and see fewer farm homes than stand between this city and Big Island. But he will see thousands upon thousands of acres of sand, alkali dust and sagebrush. It may be fine farming land, but neither the buildings along the road, such as they are, nor the growing crops indicate that the settlers have become independently rich. And the Shoshone reclamation project comes the nearest to a paying proposition to the government, we are told, of any in the country.

There is so much in this old world which we think we know that we don't. For years the discovery of the making of ice-cream has been attributed to a colored southern cook about the middle of the past century, and now it develops that the knack of making it was accidentally discovered by a French chef in 1774 when a custard left by him on a window ledge to cool was frozen solid.

Lady Northesk, formerly Jessica Brown of the Follies, divorced in October, has married a young British diplomat, Vivian Cornelius. Now if Lord Northesk and Peggy Joyce will tie up, and sidestep the spot-light, its rays may be directed to something worth while—at least temporarily.

The agreement of Bolivia to forego warfare and submit the differences between her and Paraguay to the Pan-American conference in Washington is some feather in the cap of Secretary of State Kellogg. Incidentally, the incident is something in the way of notice to the League of Nations that differences between American governments can be adjusted without its aid, the notice being the more pronounced by reason of the fact that both Bolivia and Paraguay are members of the League.

Dealers in laxicabs have testified that they were compelled to pay a commission of $100 before one of the taxi companies up in Chicago would O K the sales of taxis made to its drivers, the $100 being in each case added to the price of the car. It comes pretty close to the limit when big concerns will racketeer on their own men.

Talking about odd mix-ups; when the divorced husband of a Lewiston, Idaho, woman went to her home with gifts for their daughter, he was overcome by illness, which a hurriedly-summoned doctor called smallpox. The town authorities acted quickly, quarantining the woman, her former husband and their daughter in the home and barring out the woman's husband who was at work at the time and not exposed to the disease. The result is that the husband who is out of her affections is in and the husband who is in is out.

A proceeding somewhat out of the ordinary is that begun at Tulsa, Oklahoma, against the Missouri Pacific railroad in which one of its firemen makes it defendant in an alienation suit for $100,000, alleging that officials of the company told his wife that he had obtained passes for the transportation of other women and thereby broke up his happy home. It's sometimes almost as dangerous to tell things to other men's wives as your own.

Rheumatic Fever Not Hereditary.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

When a disease is due to a known germ and runs a definite course, we speak of it as an infectious disease. Examples of such diseases are the contagious diseases of childhood and pneumonia and influenza. In the same list is found rheumatic fever.

"Rheumatic fever" is given other names in certain localities. It is the same as "acute rheumatism." "Inflammatory rheumatism" is the same disease.

Undoubtedly this condition is due to one or more of the variety of germs called the "streptococcus." All the streptococci are bad germs. Some germs, even though they are capable of causing disease, do not produce serious disease. But the streptococcus is a germ we would gladly dodge, because it does real harm whenever it acts. There are a lot other factors that have something to do with rheumatic fever. It may be well that exposure to cold and dampness may lower the resistance and leave the body in condition to be attacked successfully by the germs of disease.

I doubt if red meat and heredity have anything to do with the disease. Excessive fatigue and lack of nourishing food may prepare the way. I have known several doctors who have worn themselves out during an epidemic and who have gone without proper food. The penalty they have paid was rheumatic fever.

A sore throat may be the final symptom of trouble. Fever, definite pain in one or two joints and then redness, swelling and tenderness of several joints may be noted.

The acute variety of rheumatic fever lasts for a month or two. In a favorable case it may terminate in three weeks. The chronic type lasts for months, perhaps for a year and a half. When once it comes, it may reappear.

The victim of this disease must go to bed and keep absolutely quiet. Fresh air and frequent baths are indicated.

The sore joints are so painful that the weight of the bed clothes hurts. A support must be devised to keep the blanket from the sore places.

Warm cotton wrapped about the joints and gentle bandaging will promote the comfort. The joint should be tied to avoid movement.

Hot applications, rubbing the affected parts with oil of wintergreen, alcohol or chloroform liniment may help.

The family doctor will prescribe remedies which will help to control the disease and at the same time relieve the dreadful pain.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

M. N. Q—What is the cause of myelitis?

2—What causes a tight feeling in my head, accompanied by a burning sensation?

A—This is due to some infection of the spinal cord.

2—Perhaps you are troubled with poor circulation due to a run-down state of health. High blood pressure may also be responsible. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

E. V. Q—Would a lump in the breast of a twenty-five-year-old patient be cancerous? Where would one go for thorough examination and advice—the patient in question living in a locality where careful medical advice is limited?

A—Such a lump or growth is not necessarily cancerous. It should however have careful and immediate attention. Apply at any hospital for examination.

J. T. Q—What causes me to have pains in my left big toe?

A—You may be troubled with neuritis caused by some infection in your system. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

A. B. Q—What is the cause of a single hair growing underneath the skin and causing a pussy swelling?

A—This condition is due to an infection of the hair follicle.

C. N. S. Q—Since an operation several years ago I have been suffering with my left leg. It feels tired and has goose-flesh on it when I stand. It bothers me at night, jumping and twitching and disturbs my rest; have tried treatment with only temporary relief. What would you advise? Is the trouble due to nerves?

A—Very likely due to neuralgia. Try to locate a possible source of infection. Massage and electricity should be helpful. Have your doctor advise after examination.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Editorial Opinion.

MILLIONS TAKE THE AIR.

Skyward the star of financial empire takes its course. A great $150,000,000 merger in aircraft and air transport is Wall Street's latest achievement. Under the forthcoming title of the United Aircraft and Transport corporation it will bring under one control and general management a group of the country's leading manufacturers of air-cooled motors, observation planes and commercial flying machines, as well as a company which is playing a major role in the development of civilian aviation on the Pacific coast. When it is added that the National City bank, the Standard Oil company, the Ford Motor company and General Motors corporation will be represented on the board of directors of the combination it will be apparent that high finance is about to take a real dive.

Neither in America nor anywhere else in the world has there ever been a consolidation of aviation interests comparable with this huge merger. It is born at an appropriate moment. Twenty-five years ago Wilbur and Orville Wright ascended from the barren sand dunes at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, and flew into immortality. The world's air leaders are assembled there this day to commemorate that epochal achievement. The $150,000,000 consolidation is astoundingly tangible evidence that the airplane has ceased to be an experiment and vaulted into the dizzy heights which keep-minded men of money seldom attempt to scale except in a spirit of serene confidence.

Colonel Lindbergh expressed the opinion in Washington last week that the overwhelmingly preponderant problem in the field of civilian aviation is the airport. * * * The imposing aggregation of brains and financial brawn, just brought together in New York for general aviation development, is bound in a spirit of enlightened self-interest to give prompt attention to the basic question of airports.—Washington Star, December 17.

HOLLY FOLLY.

Decorations of holly become more and more in evidence as the days go by—in the windows of business places and in their interiors, over facades, in the windows of private residences, where these bright wreaths and festoons seem to gleam more richly.

This luxuriant green, with its vivid ruby berries, is the dominant note in the scheme of holiday festive adornment. We sadly should miss the holly at the Christmastide should anything develop to prevent its immemorial use in heralding the coming of the most blessed saint in the calendar.

But again, this year, there is being disseminated the usual sobby exhortations against the employment of the holly green. This protestation is made in the name of, and under the disguise of, conservation.

As a matter of fact, the gatherers and sellers of holly are much more really interested in its protection and conservation than these parlor conservationists could ever be, for few among the latter ever saw this glorious creation of nature in its native habitat. An attempt to climb the ravine sides and almost inaccessible places where holly loves to grow speedily would convince the most of these dilettante guardians of the wild that the holly is rather competent to look after itself.

The mountain folk—and most of our holly comes from the mountains of the South—fully realize the beauty as well as the commercial value of this full kin to the Christmas tree in the matter of festal adornment and they may well be trusted not to slay the goose which lays the golden eggs, so to speak.

Neither the artificial nor cultivated holly can ever take the place of the real plant; and there isn't the slightest danger in the world that the annual trimming could in a million years prove hurtful to it.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Sunday.

Major Orlando J. Smith, founder of the American Press association and its president and general manager, died at his home in New York. He was sixty-six years of age.

Friends learned of the marriage, the day before in Covington, Kentucky, of Miss Dora Murphy and Mr. Walter Pfeifer, both of Marion.

The Salvation army was preparing to provide 100 Christmas dinners for the needy.

Friends were congratulating Mr. and Mrs. George W. Miller, the latter formerly Miss Beatrice M. Arquette, over their marriage the day before.

Through the efforts of the Busy Faithful Doers Bible class, of Wesley church, arrangements were made for the purchase of artificial legs for little Olen Blue, the victim of a railroad accident a year before.

Miss Roxanna Adams and Mr. Herbert Whysall were married by Rev. C. M. Chapin, of Prospect.

Miss Eva Dillie and Mr. Hoyt Gast were married at the home of the bride's mother at Prospect by Rev. J. J. Holiday.

Miss Bertha Ludwig and Mr. John Penry, both residing three miles east of Prospect, were married by Rev. A. P. Clere.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Dec. 20—This is a true story which, if fictionized, would make magazine editors edge you toward the door, adjust your tie and suggest dropping around next summer. It began in a shabby genteel boarding-house in west Fifty-Seventh street, so characteristic of the 90's. She was studying art. He was a young mining engineer.

There were idyllic strolls in the moonlit park and hand-holding on the front stoop. Then came his first big job—a call to South Africa for three years. She would gladly wait for him to return and her life became a drab and agonizing wait for the mail man.

For a year his letters were glowing with the fervor of his devotion. And then one evening at dinner she opened an envelope, turned white and slumped to the floor. It read: "I have learned I can live without you. It is best that we discontinue all communication."

Time wrought its unfailing healing, and after several years she married another. She was happy, but woman's most-cherished possession, pride, was hurt. Her husband understood and was indifferent to her casual flirtations. She was trying to see if she had lost her charm.

No further word had ever been received from the man in South Africa. Her husband prospered, and with this prosperity came travel to all corners of the world—even South Africa—and wherever she was her eyes were constantly searching the crowds for him.

The old wound festered and became an obsession. She was fairly certain her love for one who had greviously hurt her was dead, but more than anything else she wanted to see him again—just to make sure. In moments of introspection there had been fleeting doubts.

A few weeks ago she sat at a window of her home, idly watching a building excavation next door. Among the workmen, she saw a figure swinging a pick who seemed familiar. At the same instant he looked up and their eyes met. It was he. And her husband, arriving a few minutes later, will never know why she greeted him so rapturously.

Free filling stations for pocket lighters are in a half hundred stores around town. A press agent, aching for a little newspaper space, concocted the idea for a theater lobby, not thinking it would become popular.

A devoted first nighter and his wife, who have not missed a premiere this season, kept track of their theatrical expenses up to date. It totals $915 and they have seen sixty shows. Most experienced theater-goers, however, do not care for opening performances. They would rather see them after they have been running a week and the crudities are ironed out. If one sees one first night crowd, he sees all. They rarely vary—the critics, the agency proprietors, the costumers, those who think first-nighting constitutes celebrity, friends of the players, the rail birds, and the aromatic gentlemen who act as "angels."

The Rialto owes the veteran, George M. Cohan, another thump on the back. This season he brought out his own musical comedy—of which he was author, director and producer—at popular prices. He proved again that an excellent performance can be given at that price and, what is more important, proved it could be presented without one suggestive line or off-color situation. In the welter of cursing and deliberate flings at perversion this season, the novelty was as refreshing as stepping out of a soggy night club into the bracing tang of the seaside.

There was an unusual appeal for the first-nighters in Cohan's newest star, Polly Walker, who thrilled and danced through her part without a mistake, but who visibly trembled like an aspen leaf. That sort of nervous eagerness usually presages success.

Laws of Falling.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"I understand that a falling body moves a certain number of feet the first second—sixteen I think. At any rate there is no fraction. How comes it that there is such an accurate coincidence between these two measures of time and distance? One is a division of a natural period and the other a man-made measure that, as far as I know, has no rhyme or reason, and might easily have been a trifle shorter or longer.—C. P., Troy, New York."

What you apparently mean to ask is why the distance fallen in the first second should be an exact number of feet with no fraction. But you are mistaken about the distance; the body does not fall an exact number of feet with no fraction. For the sake of round numbers, when great accuracy is not required, it is usual to speak of this distance as sixteen feet. In fact, however, it is, in the mean—for it is not a fixed amount everywhere on the earth—about sixteen feet one inch. For scientific calculations the double of this distance is employed, and that is thirty-two feet two inches, which is known as the "acceleration of gravity," denoted by the letter g, being the increase of velocity that a falling body experiences in each successive second.

Thus in the first second the velocity is 0 at the start and 32.166 at the end. To get the mean add the extremes and divide by two. The sum of 32.166 and 0 is 32.166, half of which is 16.083, which is substantially sixteen feet one inch. This is the distance fallen in the first second.

In the second second the body, which is already falling at the rate of 32.166 feet per second, adds 32.166 feet to that velocity, making its total velocity at the end of the second second 64.332 feet. Half of the sum of the two velocities is 48.249 feet, the distance fallen during the second second, and that plus the distance fallen in the first second—16.083 feet—gives 64.332 feet as the total distance fallen during the two seconds.

But now you must understand, as already remarked, that the acceleration of gravity or the quantity called g, is not the same everywhere on the earth. The force of gravity is the resultant of the earth's attraction combined with the centrifugal force of its rotation. It varies both with distance from the equator and with distance from the center of the earth. The centrifugal force is greatest at the equator and zero at the poles. Its tendency is to diminish the force of gravity. The earth's attraction is greatest at the poles because the polar diameter is less than the equatorial and least at the equator. Through the combination of these two forces—terrestrial gravitation and centrifugal force—it comes about that gravity at the poles is about 1-190th greater than on the equator.

In a general way the force increases as you go from the equator toward either pole, but there are many local variations due to inequalities of density in the interior of the globe. Gravity also varies with altitude above sea level. These variations are not of much importance in the ordinary concerns of life, but they are interesting and important in the scientific study of the shape and internal constitution of our planet. Owing to the local variations just spoken of the direction of the plumb line is not everywhere precisely the same, or not exactly toward the geometrical center of the earth. But for ordinary purposes we may treat it as if were invariable. A steep, lofty mountain tends slightly to draw aside a plumb line, and on some coasts the attraction of high neighboring land tends to elevate the level of the adjacent sea water.

Among the best means of measuring the intensity of gravity is by the vibrations of a pendulum, the vibrations increasing in speed with increase of gravity. This method has revealed many peculiarities in the inner outlines of the earth, whose precise shape is not in all respects yet known. But these are among the most delicate refinements of science.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

California, despite its fame for fruit and climate, is really a great bean state. Lima bean growers not long ago spent $170,000 in advertising to move their crop. And it moved. If you have any doubt of the power of newspaper advertising ask the bean growers of California. Go from beans all up and down the line. Production in the United States takes on new figures of enormity. Advertising takes on greater and greater importance if the "crop" is going to be moved.

An English woman—the Baroness Ravendale—says a woman has no right to take a man's job in the world just as a relief from boredom. It is perhaps true that many women go into business life because they are tired of what used to be women's exclusive duties. But they have often learned two things while doing it. They have learned that they like jobs and sometimes learned they can do them as well as men. Men ought not to "crab" about it. They ought to be stimulated by the competition. Of course women will have to live and toil upon the earth many years before men will honestly—down in their heart of hearts, or mind of minds—accept them as intellectual equals.

Elsie intends remaining in that tropical clime until after the holidays, returning to ye Film Village around January 10th. Joe moved to the Roosevelt Hotel Thursday. He will back it until Elsie arrives and finds a new house for them. She is keen to habitat in the Hollywood hills, despite the shivery darkness and deadly silence of the nights. Joe isn't so enthusiastic about such a move. So they'll probably compromise and move to the hills. He, by the by, will spend Christmas with his parents.

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affection

BY ADELE GARRISON

Ronald Pleads for Permission To Take Marion to a Dance

Ronald Brixton asked to speak to her, Lillian started perceptibly and shot a look of appeal at me. She was so absurdly fearful of her sister's friendship with the boy. I think for the second she had the wild idea that he meant to ask her permission to become engaged to Marion, or something equally fantastic. But common sense came to her aid, even as I gave her an old familiar signal, meaning, "Don't be absurd."

Everything's all right," and Ronald smiled charmingly at the boy.

"Of course, Ronald," she said, moving aside with him to a little alcove in the hall. But he evidently did not want privacy, only an opportunity to make a request, for his voice was clearly audible to all of us.

"Say, it's like this," he said hurriedly. "I'd like awfully well to have you bring Marion up for a basketball game and a dance this winter. I think I could show her an awfully good time. My roommate's going to ask Carol, and mother's coming up with her. Won't you promise to come and bring her?"

Marion's face was carefully averted from the pleader, but when he finished, she turned toward her mother as if drawn by a magnet, and her eyes were lustrous with appeal. Lillian looked at her for an instant, and in that moment I think she definitely gave her up as a child, and entered a new relationship, that of mother to a young woman. That it grazed her soul, I knew, and my heart ached for her, although I felt that she was being almost ridiculous in her attitude toward Marion's "growing up."

No one else guessed her feelings, however. I was sure of that as I saw her give Ronald just the kindly smile which the occasion needed.

"I think that would be most delightful, Ronald," she said cordially. "But are you sure the girls can leave school for an affair like that? That school is very strict about unnecessary absences, and I am afraid they would not consider a dance in the same category as a broken arm or an automobile accident. How about it, Marion? Come over here and let's talk this over."

"May I come too?" Helena Brixton asked in her beautifully modulated tones, and I noticed her husband and his half-brother slipping away toward the veranda.

"Of course," Lillian said. "Let's go into the living-room. Come along, Carolyn and Mary. Don't go, Madge!"

"Won't you please excuse me?" Mary queried. "I promised George Jackson I'd drive with him later, and I've some mending and other things to finish up."

Something clicked in my brain as I remembered that the morning post had brought her weekly letter from the Braithwaites. She had gone with Prince Georges for a drive upon that day each week. What connection might that fact have with the checking out of most of her allowance each week to the mysterious Janet Rawden? The conjecture was fantastic I knew, but I resolved to pursue it further at my first opportunity. Just now I could do nothing save nod in acquiescence to the permission Lillian promptly granted.

"Of course, Mary," she said and then motioned the rest of us to chairs.

"Let's get this straightened out," she said. "Just what are the rules of your school, Marion, concerning outside parties?"

Home-Made, but Ends Bad Cough In a Hurry

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Put this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and soothes away the inflammation. At the same time it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in obstinate bronchial coughs and "flu" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

If I Were a Man

BY JILL

I WOULDN'T strut around in a uniform every chance I got. The dear old gag about a girl always falling for gold braid and brass buttons depends on several things.

There are uniforms and uniforms, to begin with, and there are also men and men! If I happened to have a pair of legs that looked well in leather puttees, I wouldn't ignore the fact that a portly stomach and sloping shoulders might possibly mar the picture.

And although my profile might score a knock-out under a Knight of the Golden Fleece headdress, I'd remember that the effect of silk stockings and shorts on my manly figure might tell another story. After all, the drab long trousers and sacklike coats of everyday life have their advantages.

Nature has been known to make mistakes, and concealment has it all over revealment in some cases.

If I Were a Girl

BY JACK

I WOULDN'T brag about not knowing how to cook. I wouldn't take a secret pride in not being able to tell a beefsteak from a lamb chop, or a flour-sifter from a waffle iron. I wouldn't inform Hubby proudly that Mother never allowed me near the kitchen," and boast of the fact that I can't even boil water without burning it.

He may think it sort of cute at first, but a couple of weeks of burnt steak, rock-like biscuits and sad flapjacks will cure him forever.

I'd take up cooking in a really serious way, and I'd do it before marriage—not after. I'd devote myself to the whole-souled enthusiasm I brought to bear on kissing and I wouldn't give Hubby's disposition a chance to curdle under the strain of chronic indigestion. The way to a man's heart lies through his stomach, and I wouldn't try to teach it by roundabout roads.

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

TOMORROW will be Friday, and that will be the last day of school till next year. And that isn't so far away as it sounds. When I had got all my other work done and was milking the dummed brutes the door opened behind me and someone came in and I didn't look up to see which of the kids it was, and then I heard Mr. Wagmore say: "Well, Thomas Aristides, how about shoveling the snow off of my walk?" And I was surprised so I almost fell off the stool. I got up and I told him I would be glad to do it, so he said he would be gone to his office before I got done and he pulled out a dollar and gave to me and told me to do a good job, and I told him I would. So then I went in the house and told my mother I wouldn't want any breakfast because I had got to shovel all of Mr. Wagmore's sidewalks off before school, and she told me to run along and she would leave some on the table for me. So I got the snow shovel and went to it.

Pretty soon the bunch came and began standing around watching me and telling me what a fine shoveler I am, and I didn't say anything, and then the Lost Bag of ripe came, and he started to tell me how to do it, and Nibs and Peanuts and Ikes jumped on him and flung him down in the snow and told Feeble to set on him and Feeble set on him and then Mealy sot on him and they all got hold of his ankle and drug him around on all of the walks I hadn't shoveled yet and just then Mrs. Wagmore came out and made them turn him loose and they did and he got up and had just got his mouth open to say something when Nibs who had a handful of snow and had been laying for him crammed his face full of it and skun out.

Mrs. Wagmore laughed and said we are a lot of little savidges.

And then I got the walks all done and skun out for my house and there was some mince pie on the table and I sot down to eat it and Feeble took the mince pie and Maggie grabbed my glass of milk and Mealy grabbed off a handful of pancakes so there wasn't any more on the table than a rabbit, and we all stormed out of the door hollering and yelling so that my mother thought we must be crazy.

I certainly was hungry. I could of bit a piece out of my teacher. So when noon came I went home for some dinner which I almost never do, and my mother gave me some bread and milk and a piece of hot punkin pie, so maybe I'll come home at noon every day after this. My grandfather had went somewhere, and my ant was reading. Only my mother was working.

An Unusual Romance of Love and Sacrifice

BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER FORTY FIVE

"WELL, spring has came," the butcher boy said, dropping his brown paper bundle on the kitchen table.

Adelina Haines sniffed. "I only hope that leg o' lamb I ordered is spring. Last one I got was winter before last. You can't tell Mr. Phelps for me that if he ever sends me another—"

"Oh this is genuine spring lamb all right. Real spring day too. Well, g'bye, Mis' Haines!"

Old Man Haines looked up from his rocker by the stove. "Yes another spring. The buds are swelling on the trees. It's right pretty out there now, with the sun kind of sparkling on the wet branches. Martha always made a right big fuss over spring. Martha was a great hand for a few blossoms in the window there, in a milk bottle . . . yes . . . every spring." He sighed, and folded his gnarly hands over his stomach, rocking gently back and forth. An "old-man habit" that never failed to irritate Adelina.

"Yes? Well if you had the cold in your head that I got in mine you wouldn't be talking spring. Spring! With mud over everything and your old trees still looking dead as door nails. Oh God how sick I am!" And she began to cry noisily, not bothering to cover her face, so that the tears streamed down her sagging cheeks, streaking the pink paint, and in the glare of the kitchen window she looked incredibly old and worn.

He thought, with a twinge of conscience, "Why, she is sick!" He got up, and with gentle hands patted her fat shoulder. He felt suddenly virile, and young. His wife wasn't well. He'd have to take care of her. "Don't cry," he mumbled, with a return of his old, fatuous manner. "Don't worry, Adelina, darling I'm here!" He drew her head against his shoulder, and awkwardly dabbed at her eyes with a big white handkerchief. And then he caught her breath . . . "Adelina! Adelina, you've been drinking! You! My wife . . . My God . . . my wife, drinking . . . After all these years, and me who never touched a drop of—intoxicating—"

"You're insulting me!" she screamed. "Just because I took a mouthful to ease my toothache, and maybe help my cold, when Dr. Thomas himself prescribed it, and I hate the taste of it so I'd rather take poison . . . That settles it . . . that settles everything. I'm through—I'm going!"

She actually got as far as the stairway before he had recovered enough to stop her, and even then she ran ahead of him, crying loudly, and threw herself on the top of her untade bed.

"Adelina," he panted. "I didn't mean it. So help me God, I didn't! Darling, I love you. I'd do anything in the world for you—"

"Anything but spend a nickel!"

From the shelter of her protecting arms she could look up at his face. She saw that the shaft had hit home. "I haven't had the money," he said slowly. "That last I raised for Daphne was about all I dared—"

"Yes—for Daphne. You got it for Daphne," she taunted.

After a while she sat up, wiping her eyes. "It hurts so," she whispered. "To be so misunderstood. But all my life it's been like that, nobody ever understood me. It's all right, I can bear it. I only hope I can keep goin' a while longer, and don't drop in my tracks getting dinner, that's all I hope . . . Well, it's all right. If you can't afford to hire me a woman to help, you can't. I'm only your wife. I'll stay by you anyhow. It isn't like I was a daughter. Girls are all selfish. Even Crystal!" She was crying in earnest now.

"What's she been doing?" he demanded, straining the heaving Adelina closer to him. It was sweet to be in her confidence this way, having her complain to him about Crystal. She had never done that before. It showed she really loved him, depended on him.

"Oh nothing. But she won't come home to help me out . . . They're just alike, her and your Daphne, go off and leave us. And I'm worried about her all alone in the city, livin' on air, because you won't send her anything, and not having any money to hire a woman to help me like I should have, with my high blood pressure an' my poor feet . . . ooh, Abner!" The rest was drowned in tears.

He held her until her stormy weeping had ceased. His mind was made up. Why worry about next year? They'd be dead, perhaps, and why save your money for ungrateful children?

"I'll get you a woman," he promised. "I'll get you some money to send Crystal! You can go get you a spring hat too. I guess Abner Haines ain't beat yet!"

And as he walked to town he thought he had not felt so well and so young for months.

After he had gone Adelina went to the mirror and massaged her face with cold cream, and a tissue builder that the flashing brunette who sold it said would work a miracle in six weeks. She had high hopes of it, it had been so expensive. Then she telephoned to San Jose, and made an appointment for a permanent wave and a peroxide rinse. Things were looking brighter.

In the cracked soup tureen on the top shelf of the china closet there was a little pile of paper money. Money that Daphne had sent. She went to the pantry and counted it now, though she knew the amount to the last cent. Eighty dollars in bills, six dollars in silver, and eight copper cents.

"It's no more than right!" she thought, counting out $15 for the permanent, and $2 for the peroxide rinse. "With a good position like she's got, she ought to help some at home. Other girls do. If my girl was working I'd make her do the same. Besides I might need it to bury Abner, you need ready money at a time like that, and he's her father!"

But thinking of Abner dead in his bed, and Abner rattling on in a black wagon so unnerved her that she bought another little taste of medicine to pull herself together. Now that Abner knew about the medicine, and understood why she took it, she wouldn't have to be so careful.

"Ahh!" she gurgled, as the pale burning liquid went down. The old peach brandy was gone long ago. This, which she was able to get through the vegetable man for $2 a pint, didn't taste nearly so good.

"But it's good enough for my nerves," she thought, and sat down in Abner's chair to wait for him to come back from town with the promised cook. A pleasant drowsiness stole over her. "I wonder what Crystal's doin' today?"

Crystal was curled up in the biggest armchair yawning over her check-book and a pile of dog-eared bills. She wasn't good at figures, but one thing was clear, there wasn't nearly enough to pay them. She reached for a sheet of paper to write to her mother, but heavens what a bother! There was a new magazine on the floor beside her, and a nice box of chocolates.

Half past four! She settled down with the magazine, to wait for Ralph.

He came about an hour later, laden with bundles, and grinning from ear to ear. "Steak and strawberries, and avocados and chocolate cake and—"

"Don't tell me you expect me to cook them!" she whimpered, laughing and kissing him, and inwardly ruing. If he thought she was going to fall for that sort of thing, he'd have to be disillusioned quickly.

"I should say not, I'm the cook. Where's an apron?"

She tied a dishtowel around his waist, and he had a wonderful time fussing over the salad, and broiling the steak to just the degree he liked it.

"Wonderful!" she gurgled. "The best food I have ever tasted," and he glowed with pride. But he was a bit disappointed too. She was so out of place in the kitchen with her frivolous slippers and her sophisticated, clinging gown.

"We used to do this sort of thing in college," he said, half apologetically. "Seems like old times in a way. By the way the fraternity . . . did I put too much dressing on the avocados?"

"No, they're perfect. What were you going to say about the fraternity."

"Oh nothing I guess. Slipped my mind anyway. Lets pull out when we finish dinner, and go to a show."

He was silent, and absent-minded the rest of the evening. Anxious to get away, and get in touch with Daphne. It had occurred to him that Crystal wasn't just the right one for every occasion. There were times when you wanted somebody not so . . . so glittering and grand.

HEARING IS HELD IN SMITH OUSTER CASE

in October 1926. The checks, according to the testimony, were found when a stronghox in Smith's office was forced open while Jones and A. G. Atwill, his assistant, were making their inspection of the office.

Riley Makes Payment

It was stated that the checks had never been turned over to a bank for collection. Jones testified that after he found the checks he reported them to A B Peckinpaugh, head of the bureau of inspection, who in turn reported them to Riley. According to Jones, Riley came to his room last May and paid the amount of the checks in cash. This was then deposited to the credit of the county recorder.

The checks bore dates ranging from Jan 1, 1926 to Feb. 19, 1927. Riley's inspection of Smith's office was made during October of 1926 and included all transactions made up to the end of September of that year.

The dates on the checks show that Smith was holding part of them at the time the inspection was made. Riley's report, according to Jones' testimony, shows that Smith's accounts were satisfactory.

First Shortage

Jones' report, made immediately after his inspection was completed, shows that Smith shorted his first pay on Nov. 0, 1926. Money paid in to the county auditor on that date was collected by the recorder during the previous month.

Jones also testified that when he opened the strong box in which the checks were found, he found $34 in small change. This, he said, was also deposited in the account of the recorder's office.

Earl E. Thomas, county auditor, in whom all county officials make a monthly payin of the receipts of their office, testified that Smith first fell behind in his payins about June 1927. Thomas stated that after Smith had allowed more than a month to pass without making a payin, he went to Columbus to discuss the matter with Peckinpaugh.

Thomas stated that Peckinpaugh advised him to insist that Smith make his payin regularly.

"When I went to Smith," Thomas testified, "I found that he had a payin certificate made out that had been in his safe for three or four weeks."

After this incident it was necessary for the auditor to go to Smith each month for payins, according to the testimony. Thomas said that Smith's payins were late in spite of his insistence, and that no settlements were made for November and December of 1927 until February. These were the last payins made by the recorder.

Smith was last seen in Marion on April 29. The inspection of his records showed that he was short $2,910.56. Since then he has been indicted for embezzlement by a grand jury and ouster proceedings started against him in common pleas court.

FEAR SENATE FIGHT AS BILLS COME UP

Final Action on Both Big Navy and Peace Pact May Be Delayed

hoped to get in first with a motion to consider the treaty.

The offering of the motion however, will represent only the opening shot in their contest and if defeated in the first round, the opponents of the bill plan a filibuster until the senate takes its Christmas recess Saturday.

In the meantime, two other important bills await consideration. Senator Smoot, Republican, of Utah, announced he would ask action on an appropriation bill. Senator Smith Democrat of South Carolina, made a similar declaration about his bill, providing a $15,000,000 relief fund for farmers and fruit-growers in southeastern states. Under ordinary circumstances the appropriation bill will have the right of way.

The irreconcilables welcomed the delay. They believed enactment of the "big navy" bill would help their fight against unconditional ratification of the treaty.

CLEVELAND'S HOLIDAY CHEER SECTOR RAIDED

CLEVELAND, Dec 20—East side bootleggers, storing up bottled cheer for the holiday trade had been dealt a serious blow today by federal prohibition agents, who staged a series of raids last night. The federal men, working under Deputy Prohibition Administrator Gustave Simons, seized 10,000 pounds of corn sugar, 98 barrels of mash, and 265 gallons of alleged moonshine. Three men were arrested.

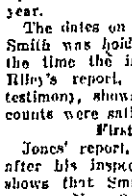
When Children Get Feverish



The first and best thing to do when children get feverish, irritable, have coated tongue and bad breath is to start thorough bowel action.

Do this with Triena, the non scientific corrective, containing the juice of pure tree-ripened prunes. Triena is made especially for children and contains nothing injurious or harmful to them.

Not only does Triena promote thorough, pleasant bowel action but it sweetens the stomach and tends to cause healthier liver action as well.

Keep Triena in your home and give it to your children instead of nauseating, castor oil, dangerous calomel or old-fashioned physics.

Your druggist sells and recommends Triena with a money back guarantee. Large 4-ounce bottle costs only 50c

COMMUNITY CHEST GENERALLY SUCCESS

Inquiry Reveals No Cities Abandoning Plan After Trial

has been shown in other cities that unless a wise selection of leaders has been made that the chest will be handicapped from the start.

One of the biggest cities to put the community chest plan into operation this year is Washington D. C. In a recent radio address over Station WRC, Elwood Street, director, declared that "it is expected that the cost of raising funds will be cut in half; that it will result in more money being raised than in the past; will increase the number of givers; will greatly improve the quality of work done by the various member bodies; will bring about adoption of businesslike methods where they are now lacking and will develop a cooperative spirit of great importance."

Street stated that it was expected that the cost of raising funds in Washington by means of the chest plan would cut campaign costs in half. Indianapolis this year spent 15 per cent in collecting and administering the funds; St. Louis spent only 7.7 per cent and Detroit's cost was five per cent.

PLAN FAVORED BY PRESIDENT

Declaring in favor of the community chest movement, President Calvin Coolidge on Oct. 27, 1926, made the following statement:

"I believe that the community chest plan of providing benevolences is the best which has been devised. By eliminating much of the cost of collection it increases the amount actually available for charitable purposes and makes for a wiser and more equitable division of funds in accordance with the needs and opportunities of each. The very fact that the American people stand ready at all times to aid in worthy cause tends in itself to increase the number of benevolences dependent for their existence upon annual contributions, so that there is a real danger that the fine objects of each may be obscured by the problem of maintenance and the true spirit of benevolence chilled by an endless succession of pressing demands. The community chest idea makes possible the inclusion of a definite sum for charitable contributions in the family budget and by a concentration of effort focuses the thought of each community at one time on the duty and the privilege which is theirs to aid the deserving and to relieve suffering and misfortune."

Forecast for Marion

It has been predicted that should Marion adopt the chest plan that the community spirit of the city will be raised, and that the public will be brought together more closely.

Among the other advantages listed by students of the community chest are:

One single well organized campaign greatly decreases the cost of collecting money for various philanthropical agencies.

Affords great relief to volunteers who collect the money. Ten days of hard work usually relieves them for the rest of the year.

Gives the management and powers of the various agencies included in the chest a chance to do their work without thought of raising their own funds.

A community chest improves the business conduct of the agencies, it focuses the attention of the community on the work its agencies are doing, thereby bringing about a more intelligent interest, and it promotes co-operation in philanthropic work.

The chest increases the number of *contributors and is a powerful fac*tor in producing community good will.

The united campaign of a chest, by its bigness and importance, is able to command the best talent of the community; and for that reason, having the respect and confidence of the community, has a better chance of obtaining the financial support needed than a wearying succession of individual agency solicitations.

Cleveland's Answer

The Cleveland chamber group recently answerd the statement that the fund lessened interest in social service with this declaration: "Contrary to the preconceived opinion of some people to the effect that the community fund would lessen interest in social service, it has actually broadened this interest by bringing this tremendous body of contributors into partnership in the greatest social service undertaking in the history of this or any other country."

Chorus Girls, Reforming Club Women, Short Dresses Not Modern, Shorey Says

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Dec. 20—Dresses that reveal knees, chorus girls, and reforming club women are nothing new in history, according to Dr. Paul Shorey, head of the department of Greek at the University of Chicago, speaking before the Los Angeles Teachers' Institute.

These things existed in the days of Sparta and Greece, said Dr. Shorey, and even in those days they were held up to criticism by those who feared "feminine modesty was disappearing."

"Gold diggers" were looking for aged millionaires in the days of Euripides and home brew was creating domestic discord even in in the time of the Greek pagans, he asserted.

Dr. Shorey quoted from the classics the following cynicisms.

"A woman's two best days are when she is mated and when she is cremated.

"No caveman can get away with a woman unless she is willing.

"Women are the only true conservatives, they must do things as they are used to doing them.

"You should beware of widows, marry an inexperienced maid so you can teach her good ways.

"If I must say anything about female virtue I will say it is an excellent thing in a woman who does her best within female limitations."

SAYS APPENDICITIS CAUSED BY 'WORM'

Specialist Announces New Theory After Years of Investigation

discerned traces of the pinworms, or oxyurides, as they are medically termed, in the early stages of the disease.

In further support of his theory, Dr. Henry pointed out that in tropical countries and warm climates where campaigns were underway against worm diseases in general, a vastly lower percentage of appendicitis cases were recorded. The southern states as well as South American countries bear this statement out, he said.

"Pinworms are so small ordinarily they cannot be discovered without a special microscope, and not even then, sometimes," said Dr. Henry. "But they are present in every early case of appendicitis. I believe that the reason surgeons do not find pinworms more frequently is that they do not operate in the primary attack or at least not until suppuration has taken place and the pinworms, or oxyurides, are destroyed."

Dr. Henry treats incipient cases with pinworm medicine—and cures them. In advanced stages of appendicitis, of course, he operates. In explaining his theory, Dr. Henry emphasized that while the pinworms started the inflammation of the vermiform appendix, they perished from their own "bad medicine" as the disease grew worse.

"Little is known of pinworms except that they lay approximately 10,000 eggs apiece and multiply enormously," Dr. Henry said. "They are a virulent species. Possibly they are found in raw vegetables and enter into the intestinal tract through the mucus membrane and skin."

Dr. Henry said he hoped to interest some medical foundation to do research work on pinworms to further check his theory.

Contrary to popular conceptions, appendicitis shows an increased death rate since 1912, according to the latest census figures available.

The death rate per 100,000 population in 1925 for appendicitis shows 14.1 against 11.6 in 1912. The majority of other diseases reveal a decreasing death rate.

PRINCIPAL STATE WITNESS BEING GUARDED IN HOTEL

CHICAGO, Dec. 20 — Michael Divito, principal remaining state's witness in the Rauieri kidnaping case, was closely guarded in a downtown hotel today following an alleged prediction by Angelo Petitti, one of the three defendants in the trial, that "Divito will be the next to die."

Ole Scully, the first witness to die, was murdered several nights ago in a saloon by four men who wielded baseball bats and revolvers.

RUMOR BEETHAM WILL HEAD DRY ENFORCEMENT

COLUMBUS, Dec. 20—The report that Gov. elect Myers Y. Cooper will announce the appointment of Rupert Beetham, Cadiz banker, as state prohibition commissioner within the next day or two was current today in state political circles. Cooper and his intimate advisers, however, declined to comment relative to this report. If appointed, Beetham will succeed State Prohibition Commissioner D. P. McDonald.

WEDDING PROBED IN LOCAL COURT

Authorities Investigate Reported Marriage of Girl, 16, to Man, 56

has not been disclosed by authorities pending hearing of the case this afternoon.

Henry, Willis and Miss Monroe were arrested on warrants sworn out by the girl's mother, Mrs. Flora Hickman, charging that they caused the girl to be truant from home.

Found at Henry Home

The girl was found at Henry's address, 278 Chestnut st., Tuesday night in company with Henry, police state. When the girl was questioned at police headquarters she gave her name as Mrs Walter Henry.

The case first came to the notice of authorities when report was made to juvenile court by Mrs. Hickman recently that her daughter had run away from home. After a search through the state, she was found here Tuesday. Willis was arrested the same night while Miss Monroe was not arrested until last night.

The girl is being held at the Marion county juvenile detention home, Miss Monroe is at the county jail and the two men are held in city prison.

WOMAN TRIES FOR ENDURANCE RECORD

Plans To Stay in Air at Least 15 Hours To Set Mark

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Dec 20—Miss Viola Gentry, who holds a transport pilot's license took off here shortly before six o'clock this morning in a Travelair biplane in an attempt to establish a new endurance record for women. She will remain in this vicinity during the flight.

The plane carried 110 gallons of gasoline. It is estimated this amount of fuel will keep the plane aloft for 38 hours, and Miss Gentry said she intended to stay up 35 hours, if possible. She has about 150 solo flying hours to her credit.

100 PASSENGERS SAFE AFTER CRASH OF BOATS

VANCOUVER, B. C., Dec. 20—The 100 or more passengers rescued from the Princess Adelaide, Canadian Pacific coastwise liner which collided with a Norwegian freighter outside Vancouver Harbor, were to resume their voyages on other ships today. All were reported safe. There was comparatively little loss of baggage or valuables.

The two ships collided yesterday in a dense fog, the Hampholm striking the Adelaide amidships and penetrating eight feet. The engine rooms of the liner were flooded and C. M. Loughlin, purser, and one passenger suffered slight injuries.

ROCKEFELLER SAYS DAY OF SMALL CHURCH OVER

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—The day of the small church is over in New York City, and in other large cities, in the opinion of John D. Rockefeller Jr., who is actively working today to assist in the raising of funds for the Broadway temple, the "skyscraper church" now under construction.

Mr. Rockefeller already has given $250,000 toward the project and has pledged $100,000 more if the pastor, Dr. Christian F. Reisner, raised $500,000 by the end of the year.

ONE MAN DEAD, OFFICER DYING AFTER GUN FIGHT

MARTINS FERRY, Dec. 20—Homer Smith, 38, is dead and Patrolman Peter Reddy was in the hospital at noon today, probably mortally wounded, as a result of a gun battle here this morning.

Accompanied by Officer George Cusick, Reddy went to the home of Smith in the north end of the city, with a warrant for his arrest. The man sought was in his garage and refused to obey orders to come out, and opened fire on them, the officers (illegible). Both returned the fire through the open garage door.

SUCCESSFUL METHODS FOR COMBATING FLU AND COLDS

Follow These Rules — Do Not Fool With a Cold — Use Tried Safe Methods

Look out for colds—even mild colds in the head and throat.

Don't let them get down into the chest and lungs.

Don't expose yourself to damp or wet weather.

Don't go out if you are feeling sick. Influenza, grippe, pneumonia or other serious sickness often come from colds.

THE DANGER

Cold, "Flu" and Pneumonia Germs multiply by the millions and attack the weak and the strong alike. Watch out for colds, they weaken your resistance. The greatest danger lies in that "simple cold." Kill that cold quickly.

It is of vast importance to clean out the entire intestinal tract, upper and lower bowels. Keep the kidneys well flushed and freshen and strengthen the blood.

Experience Has Taught

The experience of the 1918 epidemic showed that one of the best and simplest treatments was to take a steaming hot cupful of Bulgarian Herb Tea.

Why take any chances, why not be prepared to fight off your cold or "flu."

The right thing to do now is to go to your druggist, get a box of Bulgarian Herb Tea. Kill off your cold. Take it steaming hot twice a week. It will heat up the chilled blood, increase the circulation and rid the bowels and intestines of poisons and germs. Every family will find Bulgarian Herb Tea (purely vegetable) a real blessing to have on hand in this time of need.

See your druggist at once. Your health—perhaps your very life—may depend upon taking this simple precaution.—Adv.

CONFERENCE MOVES SLOW ON SOLUTION

Groundwork Being Laid for Arbitration of Dispute

Washington, Dec. 20—With the machinery of the special mediation committee of the Pan American conference moving slowly toward a pacific solution of the Bolivian-Paraguayan border dispute, activities of the conference proper began laying the groundwork for an arbitration treaty today.

A plenary session of the arbitration committee probably will be called for tomorrow to receive the tentative draft of a convention being prepared by Victor M. Maurtua, of Peru, and Enrique Olaya, of Columbia, the reporteurs.

Already they have agreed upon a number of exceptions to questions which would be submitted to arbitration, which are said to represent the views of a majority of the delegates. The reporteurs were charged with obtaining the views of the other delegates to guide them in making a draft for discussion.

ATTORNEY DIES

HAMILTON, Dec 20—John B. Connaughton, 40, local attorney and former probate judge and city solicitor, died here today.

GAS EXPLODES

London Streets Torn Up, 12 Persons Injured

LONDON, Dec. 20—The Holborn district of central London was rocked today by a series of explosions which tore up many streets with earthquake violence and seriously injured 12 people.

Hundreds of windows were shattered. Dozen of persons were hurled from their feet or thrown from their beds by the concussion. A taxicab was blown over and wrecked. A horse and cart were hurled bodily into the air.

The explosions were attributed to leaking gas mains. Flames roared skyward from the crevasse in one street. Police and fire apparatus were rushed to the scene.

LITTLE DOUBT REMAINS THAT STORY IS CORRECT

CANTON, Dec. 20—Little doubt remained today but that Wilbur O. Heldman's story to the effect that his wife, Margaret, killed Vernard Fearn, the night of Dec 6 confessed to him a week later and then killed herself, is substantially correct.

Ora Slater, Cincinnati detective, who has been placed in charge of the case, announced today that he would not go to Lorain where the Heldmans lived. Instead, he sent Assistant County Prosecutor James Aungst and Deputy Sheriff George Thorn to Lorain this morning to conduct another inquiry there.

CHASING POWER LIMIT IS FAR OFF

York Banker Declares nism in 1927 Surveys Fully Justified

BY W. S. COUSINS
(ight, 1928, by International News Service)

YORK, DEC. 20 — The of American business in 1928 consistently upward, with booms nor recessions amount- anything more serious than ry readjustments, according is E. Pierson, chairman of the n Exchange-Irving Trust Co., the largest amalgamated banks eastern seaboard.

on told International News Service today that the optimism expressed in the 1927 business reviews had been fully justified by the developments in business this year; in other words, that the business surveys had "made good" in their forecasts for the coming year.

"A distinct improvement in the agricultural situation has materially increased the ready purchasing power of great areas which in recent years have found it necessary to seriously curtail expenditures," Pierson declared.

Says Limit Far Off

He believes confidently that the limit of the country's purchasing power is as far off as ever.

"Wholesale and retail sales, building operations and savings bank deposits are all above the 1927 year-end figures," said Pierson. "The balance between production and consumption has been well sustained and inventories generally are low. Iron and steel continue at a high level and less than the usual seasonal slackening appears in the automobile and building industries. The textile and coal mining industries, which dropped considerably through the early part of the year, are much improved and export trade ends the year with the highest figures since 1921."

Sees Firm Money

Pierson points out that while the economic experts are not in agreement over the money market outlook for next year, the probabilities are for a continuance of firm money. He pays a tribute to the quality of corporate management which in a year of tremendous competition has been able to produce better earnings than in 1927. The record of 1928 business failures is also below that of the previous year.

"Credit seems ample for purposes of expansion," said Pierson, "and so long as there still is room for credit expansion, periods of readjustment will probably prove temporary."

SAYS NATION FACES $50,000,000 DEFICIT

Appropriations Committee May Carry Budget Estimate into Hoover Term

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—The house appropriations committee at a meeting next week will consider the advisability of carrying over into the Hoover administration a supplemental budget estimate of $75,000,000 for tax refunds in order to avert the possibility of a deficit on July 1, it was learned today.

A new statement from the treasury upon the nation's financial outlook is expected to be presented at the next meeting upon which a decision will be based.

The financial situation of the treasury was brought to the fore again in the house when Rep. John N. Garner, Democrat, of Texas, acting minority leader, made an attack upon Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and declared that upon the budget figures submitted to congress by President Coolidge the nation faces a deficit of $50,000,000 on July 1.

Action on the $75,000,000 additional needed for tax refunds will be considered when the committee takes up the first of the annual deficiency appropriations bills.

Democratic members are known to be considering a demand that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon be called before the committee to make a personal statement of the treasury's condition.

KILLED BY TRAIN

CHILLICOTHE, Dec. 20—Funeral arrangements are to be made here today for George Schilling, 80, who met death under the wheels of a train at Greggs Hill, near here yesterday. Schilling was said to have been hard of hearing and failed to note the approach of C. T. & I. train.

MANSLAUGHTER CONVICTION

CHILLICOTHE, Dec. 20—Sentence is to be pronounced on Hadley Mayhugh, 51, Columbus, in common pleas court here today following his conviction by a jury of manslaughter. The indictment on which Mayhugh was tried charges he caused the death of Traffic Officer Edward Waldon Aug. 12, last, by driving his automobile into Waldon's motorcycle.

New Crop of 'Air Debbies' Are Ready To Try Wings

Amelia Earhart (left), Lady Heath (upper right), and Thea Rasche respectively, first ladies of the air in America, Great Britain and Germany

Flower Vases, Mirrors and Dressing Tables Built into 'Skyabouts'

CHICAGO—The way the girls are going in for aviation is nobody's business.

Inspired by the Amelia Earharts the Lady Heaths and the Thea Rasches the new crop of air debies has it is apparent decided to fly high—and mighty—from this day henceforth. Models on view at the recent aeronautical show prove this. For whereas previous aircraft exhibits have concerned themselves mainly with the masculine buyer the 1928 show evidenced a very earnest desire on the part of builders to appeal to the fair sex.

Many Built In Features

Not only was the tendency to be noted in richness of colors and the expensive materials used. It was evident in accessories and innovations in all of the cabin planes. For example, there was an amphibian flying boat designed to carry six passengers and two pilots which contained a galley, a tiny refrigerator and a cabinet with serving facilities. What women wouldn't exclaim with joy over these?

Cigaret lighters and ash trays were to be found in nearly all of the cabin jobs many sported flower vases mirrors and built in dressing tables.

Another noticeable improvement was the placing of doors in such manner as to make the ships easier of entry—a little thing, yes but important to women.

Among the planes exhibited was one in white and gold that made one think of movie stars. The interior was done in green while the chairs were of gold wicker with green silk cushions. In another 'job' were beautifully monogrammed pillows.

Silken Drapes for Windows

Still another ship boasted striped green silk draperies to pull over the windows instead of blinds and one even featured a good sized mirror in the lavatory.

Records of the show proved that these innovations weren't in vain, for there were many feminine purchasers represented among the orders for planes.

So don't be surprised at an entirely new crop of up and coming swoop and dive girls!

JOE RINNERT TO REPRESENT O.W.U.

Will Act as Student Spokesman for University in Marion County

Joe Rinnert 211 Reed ave has been named a student representative for Ohio Wesleyan university in Marion county according to an announcement received from the university today. Rinnert is a sophomore at Ohio Wesleyan.

University officers have just named student representatives for the university in each of the 88 counties of Ohio. High school students who are interested in Ohio Wesleyan may go to these representatives for information concerning the university and for help in making application for enrollment next year. The representatives will be in their home counties during the university Christmas vacation Dec 21 to Jan 8 and may be seen personally by students in the county at that time.

The representatives have been given detailed information by university enrollment officers concerning entrance requirements fees available scholarships and the mechanics of enrollment and are informed concerning other regulations of the university. They will be glad to answer correspondence from high school students in their counties who wish to make inquiries concerning Ohio Wesleyan.

Each freshman class at Ohio Wesleyan university is limited to 500 men and 275 women and when these quotas are filled no additional students may be enrolled.

'Old Folks' To Be Let In On Grades of All Students

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 20—Why pity the lowly fresh now?

That is the question which has found its way into the minds of the upperclassmen at Ohio State university following a recent announcement that a custom long forced upon the freshmen will be extended to all classes at the university immediately.

The ancient habit of second, third and fourth year students of keeping the "old folks" in the dark about their term grades will be greatly reformed when the grades of the upperclassmen are sent to their respective parents and guardians along with those of the freshmen students.

This order was issued at the university this week and will take effect this quarter term with the grades, both good and bad, arriving at the students' homes in time for the celebration of Christmas. Just what effect the grades will have upon the prevailing Christmas spirit is now troubling many members of the Ohio State student body.

More Study?

Only freshmen have been subjected to this ruling in the past, the device being used to acquaint the parents of the progress being made by the new students at the university.

It is believed by the university officials that the recent innovation will keep the parents of all students in closer touch with the administration's policy.

On the other hand, a belief that more studying will likely be necessary in the future, is shared by many of the students.

The Aztecs believed in special gods who brought diseases and in other gods who knew healing secrets.

FUNERAL FRIDAY

Private Services To Be Held for Carl Mack

Private funeral services for Carl Mack, retired Marion grocer, whose death occurred yesterday noon, will be held at 10 o'clock Friday morning at his late home, 206 Bellevue av. Dr. B. L. George, pastor of Epworth M. E. church, will officiate and burial will be in Marion cemetery.

Friends may view the body at the Mack home at any time before the funeral hour. Relatives request that flowers be omitted.

TRAILS DAUGHTER

Father Charters Plane in Effort To Prevent Girl from Leaving U. S.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, Dec. 20.—In pursuit of Ruth McConnell, niece of Kenneth B. Coulter, New York broker, an airplane piloted by Francis D. Bonham and carrying Dr. D. O. Meeker of Rochester, was scheduled to take off from the airport here today. Miss McConnell is due to arrive at San Francisco today on the Overland Limited.

The girl escaped a guard of two private detectives and a nurse, hired by telegraph to watch her movements in an Omaha hotel. The girl left the hotel Tuesday morning.

Miss McConnell is said to have an ample supply of cash and passports for foreign countries. Her father, in an effort to prevent her from leaving the country, chartered an airplane to catch up with her, it is reported, and has asked Dr. Meeker to place her in his custody.

WILL SING WITH CLUB

Miss Margaret LeMasters, of Richwood, librarian of the Woman's Glee club of Ohio University, will take part in the annual state glee club contest to be held March 15 at Cincinnati by the Intercollegiate Women's Glee Club association of Ohio, it is announced. Three numbers are being rehearsed for the contest, "In These Delightful Groves," from the Old English, a Czechoslovakian folk song and "On the Steppes," by Gretchaninoff.

MUST PAY $9,660 BEFORE HE GETS WIFE, CLOTHES

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—Ralph Love, Chicago's "man in purple," today must pay $9,600 before he can recover wigs, wearing apparel and other articles which he brought from France. The articles, including a purple suit and underwear, which he was wearing, were seized by customs officers because he failed to declare them as foreign purchases. Authorities at first were determined to hold also the suit and underwear, but when Love confessed they were his only clothes, the officers relented. Love is a hair dresser in Chicago.

A gift that simplifies housekeeping
—and safeguards health

If you could wrap lighter household tasks in a nice little box and close them with a not-to-be-opened-till-Christmas seal, wouldn't you like to send them to someone you know? Well, you can come pretty close to doing just that. A General Electric Refrigerator is sure one way of making life easier for the woman who runs the house.

It cuts her marketing trips, it simplifies her menu-planning, it gives new ease and variety to her cooking. It keeps the family food healthfully fresh—safe to eat.

The General Electric Refrigerator is quite different from all others, actually "years ahead" in design. Its machinery is all sealed in an air-tight steel casing and never even needs oiling. It is quiet, automatic, economical. It is easy to keep clean, too, because it stands on legs—and because the coils on top of the refrigerator radiate a constant upward air current which prevents dust from settling.

See these new-day refrigerators at our display rooms. Delivery can be made in time for Christmas. You can buy on deferred payments, if you prefer.

TIMELY PROGRAMS PLANNED

by Spirit of Yuletide

With Christmas only a few days away, the spirit of Yuletide is entering in broadcasts over the chain systems and independent radio stations of the country. Friday night's programs will feature music and songs in keeping with the season.

"Santa Claus," by Smith, and "Mother Goose Parade" are the outstanding song numbers of the broadcast of the Happy Wonder Bakers at 7 o'clock Friday night over the WEAF network of the National Broadcasting system.

In addition the orchestra will play "Black and Blue Rhapsody," "A Room with a View" from "This Year of Grace," Friml's "Chansonette," and "Some Day, Somewhere."

A long-forgotten French melody, "Christmas Night," in special arrangement from an old manuscript of unknown authorship, will be the feature of the Cities Service hour to be heard at 8 o'clock Friday night over the WEAF network of the NBC system.

The entire program will have a Yuletide atmosphere, featuring such seasonable selections as "Amens" "All On a Christmas Morning," "The Jolly Sleigh Ride Party" and a harp solo, "Christmas Fantasy," by Francis J. Lapitino.

A gay program of Christmas numbers will be rung and played by the Wrigley Spearmen during the Wrigley Review over the WJZ network of the NBC system at 9 o'clock Friday night.

Orchestra numbers of particular interest are two excerpts from Rebikov's suite, "The Christmas Tree," the old English carol, "The First Nowell" and Tschaikowsky's "Noel."

CLEAN 'EM UP!

Grover Whalen, New Police Commissioner, Issues Drastic Orders

New York, Dec. 20—Proprietors of speakeasies and gamblers quaked in their boots today as the result of the announced intention of Grover Whalen, New York's new police commissioner, to have the police "clean out those speakeasies which are the breeders of crime," and to curb the activities of professional gamblers.

The crusading commissioner has instructed the police to use nightstick and guns freely in warring against the underworld but to show the utmost courtesy and consideration to "peaceful citizens." An immediate improvement in the discipline of the force was ordered.

The gigantic shake-up in the force was followed today by demotions and transfers of various officers from the rank of deputy chief inspector down to captain.

FOOD COST UP

Retail Prices Showed Increase in November, Figures Reveal

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—Retail food prices showed a slight increase during November, amounting to one-third of one per cent over October prices, the department of labor announced today. This is the same increase over November prices a year ago, while since November, 1913, the increase has amounted to 30 per cent.

Of the 13 articles that increased in price, fresh eggs topped the list with an increase of 9 per cent, onions increased 9 per cent, leg of lamb and bananas, 2 per cent.

The principal decreases were: oranges 12 per cent; pork chops, 3 per cent; round steak and raisins, 3 per cent; bacon, ham, lard, flour, sirloin steak and chuck roast, 2 per cent.

The Italian government's land reclamation project, involving a minimum expenditure of $100,000,000 is expected to provide employment for 200,000 men for 14 years.

Noted Ventriloquist on Local Theater Bill Holds Reunion With Marion Man Who Gave Him His Start

Marshall Montgomery and Ed Sharpless Meet To Talk Over Old Times

THAT world-famous song of a few years ago—"Absolutely Mr. Gallagher, Positively Mr. Sheean!" was rehashed yesterday afternoon by a couple of old stagers in Marion.

It ran something like this:

"You're the world's greatest ventriloquist, Mr. Montgomery, with the exception of me."

"You're the world's greatest ventriloquist, Mr. Sharpless, with the exception of me."

The Mr. Montgomery was Marshall Montgomery, foremost ventriloquist on the stage today.

And the Mr. Sharpless is Marion's own Ed Sharpless, known to the theatrical profession far and wide as Edward Reynard.

Mr. Montgomery's exception, of course, was himself. And, true enough, Mr. Sharpless's exception was himself.

And, there you have it. Plus a story.

Their Holiday Custom

Actors are like motormen. When they get a day off motormen go street car riding, the old adage says. When actors get a day off they promptly go to shows.

Yesterday Marshall Montgomery, booked into the Palace for a three-day visit, had a day off between jumps. He came into Marion. When

MARSHALL MONTGOMERY

Ed Sharpless and a Star reporter went searching for Montgomery they found him devouring Lon Chaney's latest bit of skin-creeping pantomime.

So off the three of them went—Montgomery, Sharpless and the trailing reporter to the Harding lounge to chat of other days.

In those other days before Ed's "pipes"—they are the vocal apparatus that sets voice into ventriloquists' dummies—got rusty, he was THE ventriloquist. So much a ventriloquist was he that he once rated a half column editorial in the New York Sun. That was back in the days when the New York Sun was THE New York Sun. And when one made an editorial in The Sun he was worth every line of it. That's the kind of a ventriloquist Ed Sharpless was.

History Recalled

Now more than 20 years ago, these two pals thought it was yesterday, they were playing in Wilmington, Delaware. Sharpless was a headliner, getting big money in Hackstader's theater, the big time house. Marshall Montgomery was a kid trying to break into the show game. And, what a time he was having!

He confessed yesterday after that he struggled through four or five different kinds of acts before he made the grade with his ventriloquism.

Anyway, Montgomery also was in Wilmington. But, he was in a small time house getting about $30 per week, which left him, he says, about three dollars after commission, transportation, etc., were taken out.

In this small time house Montgomery was doing a piano act. He'd come out in breezy fashion, do a few tunes on the music box and for a climax would stand on his head and thump out something like "Stars and Stripes Forever" or one of the old Irving Berlin rag classics.

His Pet Ambition

But, he had a hunch he could be a ventriloquist. And he had bought a dummy.

Montgomery and Sharpless were staying at the same hotel and during the week—there were week stands then—they became fast friends. Sharpless saw how Montgomery was struggling along. So, he took Marshall aside and taught him a few mighty handy tricks with the dummy.

Montgomery's progress then became rapid. He has played everywhere, big and small cities. He's the ventriloquist now. Critics agree that his act is a real class act. Not so long ago Earl Carroll told him that he had caught the act at a vaudeville theater and to stand ready at any time for a call to come into his "Vanities" production.

In all the years that have passed since Marshall Montgomery picked up a few tricks from Ed Sharpless the two men have been bosom friends. The first place that Montgomery went yesterday when he arrived in town was to the Grand theater.

"Is Mr. Sharpless in?" he asked without sticking his head in Ed's office.

"Sure," said Ed likewise without lifting his head and at the same time throwing out a pair of handcuffs, "and you're under arrest Montgomery."

And, that's that!

You may nail a lie, but you can't always keep it down.

CATARRH GONE; COLUMBUS MAN LAUDS KONJOLA

So Weak and Ill From Stomach Trouble That He Could Not Walk—Is Well Again

MR. L. C. RUDOLPH

Those who suffer from that terrible affliction, catarrhal stomach, will find much of hope in the tribute paid to Konjola by Mr. L. C. Rudolph, 153 Souder Avenue, Columbus.

"In the many years I suffered from catarrh of the stomach I tried every medicine and remedy known, and did not get even temporary relief until I tried this marvelous Konjola. My ears rang, eyes burned. I had to live on a liquid diet. I lost in weight and strength and my nerves were shattered. I finally became so bad that I was unable to walk. I thought there was no hope. But I was wrong, for eleven bottles of the astonishing Konjola banished the catarrh from my head and cleansed my stomach. I can eat anything now, can walk any distance and am gaining rapidly in weight. If there be any who doubt this wonderful recovery, I would like to meet them personally and verify this splendid experience I had with Konjola."

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of this Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that have been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this section.

Konjola is sold in Marion at Stump & Sams Pharmacy and by all the best druggists throughout this section.—Adv.

RETIRED NEWSPAPER MAN IS DEAD AT DELAWARE

DELAWARE, Dec. 20—Last rites for Delos R. Baker, 80, retired newspaper man, will be held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harry Leonard, of Kilbourne, near here, tomorrow morning, with interment in a Columbus cemetery. Baker died in his daughter's home yesterday.

Baker was at one time editor of the Cincinnati Post, and for 20 years was on its staff in different capacities, including several years as Washington correspondent. He also was connected with the Cincinnati Times-Star.

The loss from fires in England and Wales during July last was $2,630,000, which is a record figure for a Summer month.

Sharpless Ranks as Greatest of His Day Montgomery Is Premier of Present Time

Anyway, Montgomery also was in Wilmington. But, he was in a small time house getting about $30 per week, which left him, he says, about three dollars after commission, transportation, etc., were taken out.

In this small time house Montgomery was doing a piano act. He'd come out in breezy fashion, do a few tunes on the music box and for a climax would stand on his head and thump out something like "Stars and Stripes Forever" or one of the old Irving Berlin rag classics.

His Pet Ambition

But, he had a hunch he could be a ventriloquist. And he had bought a dummy.

Montgomery and Sharpless were staying at the same hotel and during the week—there were week stands then—they became fast friends. Sharpless saw how Montgomery was struggling along. So, he took Marshall aside and taught him a few mighty handy tricks with the dummy.

Montgomery's progress then became rapid. He has played everywhere, big and small cities. He's the ventriloquist now. Critics agree that his act is a real class act. Not so long ago Earl Carroll told him that he had caught the act at a vaudeville theater and to stand ready at any time for a call to come into his "Vanities" production.

In all the years that have passed since Marshall Montgomery picked up a few tricks from Ed Sharpless the two men have been bosom friends. The first place that Montgomery went yesterday when he arrived in town was to the Grand theater.

"Is Mr. Sharpless in?" he asked without sticking his head in Ed's office.

"Sure," said Ed likewise without lifting his head and at the same time throwing out a pair of handcuffs, "and you're under arrest Montgomery."

And, that's that!

You may nail a lie, but you can't always keep it down.

TO CONDUCT RITES FOR PATROLMAN

Services Friday for Veteran City Employe; Other Deaths in County

KENTON, Dec. 20—Funeral for John Brown, 61, veteran city patrolman who died of heart trouble at McKitrick hospital, will be conducted Friday afternoon at the home, East Franklin st., in charge of the Rev. D. V. Belles, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Interment will be in Grove cemetery.

The patrolman served on the Kenton police force as day patrolman for 52 years. He was a member of the Church of Christ and affiliated with the Woodman and Knights of Pythias lodges. Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Anna Donahoo of Sidney and Miss Eva Brown of Kenton.

Remains of Lewis L. Bruce, 80, veteran of the Civil war whose death occurred at the home of a son south of here following a stroke of paralysis were laid to rest today in the Rushsylvania cemetery. The well known veteran was buried with full military honors the Bellecenter Legion post having charge. A firing squad from Company F guard unit here, assisted. The funeral sermon was delivered by the Rev. H. A. Smith, of Versailles.

During the Civil war, Mr. Bruce fought in many of the leading engagements sustaining major wounds. Remaining are two sons, a daughter, five grandchildren and a great grandchild.

Mrs. Julia Ann Rineharger, 78, life resident of north of here, died at her home Wednesday after a short illness. She was a prominent worker in the Methodist Episcopal church and in the Woman's Christian Temperence Union. There are surviving a son and a daughter, and two sisters.

The remains were taken to the home of the daughter, Mrs. Frank Friedly, in Ada today, from where funeral services will be conducted Friday morning.

Fraternity To Honor Former Mt. Gilead Man, Now On Chicago Hospital Staff

MT. GILEAD, Dec. 20—Dr. Frank Wieland, former president of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity, and a native of Mt. Gilead, is to be honored soon by the dedication of a fully equipped operating room in the Henrotin Policlinic Hospital in Chicago, where he is now a prominent physician and surgeon. This room will be dedicated to Dr. Wieland by the Delta Tau Delta fraternity not only for his work in the hospital but for the active part taken by him in fraternity work.

Dr. Wieland was born in Mt. Gilead and is a brother of E. J. Wieland and Miss Emma Wieland of Mt. Gilead, and the late W. F. Wieland, also of Mt. Gilead. He graduated from high school here in the class of 1886. He became president of the fraternity in 1901, serving until 1907, and at the present time is well known in the fraternity as host of the freshmen in their annual meet and banquet. The committee in charge of the dedication of this room, which will be one of the finest equipped in the world, says the following in part about Dr. Wieland:

Pays Tribute

"Dr. Frank Wieland, associated with the Henrotin Policlinic hospital, has achieved national eminence in his profession and is known to every member of the Delta Tau Delta. For many years he has been the genial host of the freshmen and the Wieland Freshman dinner has become a fraternity tradition, participation in which has become a coveted distinction. He is respected and loved for his professional skill, his devotion to the fraternity and his kindliness to hundreds of members in times of stress."

The inscription to be placed in the room in the hospital to be dedicated to Dr. Wieland is: "Let it also be written—'Greater Love hath no man than this, that he lives his life for his friends.' So has lived the man in whose name this room is given to the service he illumines.

"In the book of life there is not one page that, for perfection's sake, were better left unwritten or, at least, unread. And in the books of countless other lives here will be found the clean impress of his character—whole chapters that are finer because he has guided the pen that wrote them. His belief in the high destiny of young manhood has never wakened, though more than most men he has seen that destiny blindly forfeited.

Will Be Gift

"All men love this man that know him; the healing touch of his hands, the inspirational force of his great heart, the testimony of men to the fineness of his character will canonize him in the hearts of thousands. This room is the interest on a debt that can never be repaid. You who will be rejoicing from it with health won back have made that debt greater, and in return we ask only that you forever honor with us the name, and when the time comes, the memory of Frank Wieland. No man has given more of his time, thought and energy to the welfare and advancement of his fraternity—and no man has more nearly lived up to the creed and ideals of that fraternity. To the honor and memory of Frank Wieland this room is respectfully and gratefully dedicated by Delta Tau Delta."

The committee in charge hopes to be able to present this room in this hospital to Dr. Wieland as a Christmas present.

WILL GIVE PROGRAM

Play To Feature Entertainment at Wyandot School

Wyandot, Dec. 20—A play will feature the Christmas program to be given Friday night at the Antrim township consolidated school building here. Twenty-five pupils will take part in the production, "The Spirit of Christmas."

The program will open with welcome by Billy Harris followed by a dialogue. Evelyn Barton will contribute a recitation and five school children will present a dialogue, "A Christmas Story."

Other numbers are "Santa's Defender," Minor Cover; dialogue, "Santa's Little Son," six boys; recitation, "A Babe of Bethlehem," Ruth Sheafer; pantomime, "Silent Night," 12 girls; recitation, "The Night After Christmas," Ruth Bunnell; violin solo, Richard Clark; recitation, "That's Christmas," Richard Clark; piano solo, Harley Sigler.

READY FOR GAMES

Bucyrus Teams Will Journey To Fremont for Opener

Bucyrus, Dec. 20—With the opening game of the season set for Friday night at Fremont, and the B teams, boys and girls, booked to meet the Clintfield high school teams here Friday night, both Miss Bennett and Jay Winters, girls and boys coaches, respectively, are making the most of their practices this week. Although all of the Redmen are back on the court this week, after having been out of school for a great part of last week due to sickness, the boys are still showing signs of their recent illness, with the sluggishness of their actions. The girls team is in fine shape after last week-end's victory over the Crestline girls at Crestline.

MARYSVILLE TEAM TO PLAY AQUINAS

Union County Cagers Will Journey to Columbus for Game

MARYSVILLE, Dec. 20 — Attempting to win their third victory in as many starts Marysville cagers will take the floor against Aquinas, Columbus, at Columbus tonight. Showing some speed, and playing a mid-season brand of ball, the Union county boys came out on top of a 32 to 12 scoring in the Kenton-Marysville game, the first of the season, and grabbed off the bigger end of a 23 to 15 score in the tilt with Delaware last Friday.

Little dope is to be had on the next opponent, but Aquinas has the reputation of putting out some real loop stars, and showed up to advantage when they played here two and three years ago. Anyway, Coaches Klugsmore and Dalton are putting the Marysvillites through some tough practices, and have warned them that Aquinas will not be easy.

The boys are going to be put to a real test this week, for after this said battle on Thursday night, they will play Sidney here in the armory, Friday night. The same evening a preliminary will be played by the local reserves and the Martel high school basketeers.

Schwemmer was instructed by city council last night to file injunction proceedings in the Hardin county court of common pleas to restrain a junk yard located on Leighton st., a half block from the Harding highway, from further operation. Action of the legislators was prompted by a petition presented by residents in the vicinity asking that some action be taken to declare the place a nuisance.

KENTON — Resolution directing Service Director E. F. Gehman to enter into formal contract with the Board of Hardin county commissioners for the resurfacing of the public square in the spring, has been passed by council.

UPPER SANDUSKY—Mrs. Violet Welch has filed suit in Wyandot county common pleas court asking for a divorce from her husband, Charles Welch on the grounds of gross neglect of duty. She is represented by Attorney George Stecher.

MARYSVILLE — The Columbus Mutual Life Insurance Co. has brought suit in common pleas court against Frank J. Click, Myrtle Click and Harry Arnold for the foreclosure of a mortgage and the following amounts: $5,500 with interest at 6½ per cent since Aug. 6, 1927 minus $123.55; interest at six per cent on $178.75 since Feb. 6, 1928, less eight per cent interest on $123.55 since March 17, 1928; and interest at eight per cent on $178.75 since Aug. 6, 1928 and five per cent since Dec. 14, 1928; and costs of the suit.

MARYSVILLE— A license has been issued here for the marriage of Velma M. Flowers, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Flowers, Unionville Center to Howard Brown, 28, also of Unionville. The ceremony will take place today.

BUCYRUS—Mrs. Carl Nelder and Mrs. George Hofstetter were awarded high honors at the regular meeting of the Golden Rod Five Hundred club, held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Anthony Etsinger, Faustine av. Consolations were awarded Mrs. Joe Keefe. A Christmas exchange was enjoyed after which the hostess, assisted by her sister, Mrs. Stanley Bauer served refreshments. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Hofstetter Jan. 16, Hopley av.

BUCYRUS—Over 200 children and adults were in attendance at the annual Christmas party for the children held Wednesday night by the Loyal Order of Moose and the Women of Mooseheart Legion at the Moose hall. Gifts and candy were presented the children after which round and square dancing was enjoyed by the adults. Music was furnished by William Rittenour, piano, and John Weber, accordeon.

MT. GILEAD—The high school cafeteria, which began operating several weeks ago, is now enjoying the patronage of about 60 teachers and pupils daily. The class, under the direction of Miss Lucille Reidinger, instructer, is furnishing balanced rations to the patrons at a nominal charge. Most of the dishes cost five cents each some costing but three cents. A special Christmas lunch will be served Friday.

BUCYRUS—Lee W. Cahill, Tiro, has offered a reward of $10 for information leading to the arrest of the person or persons guilty of stealing between 50 and 60 white Wyandot chickens from his farm near Tiro, Tuesday night. The chickens were identified by red and blue bands around their legs.

Children of Union County Home Remembered by Santa Claus

Marysville, Dec. 20—The children in the Union County Children's Home are being royally entertained by Santa Claus this year. Last night they were entertained and presented with gifts by the Marysville Whatsoever, Ministering and Silver Cross Cross circles of King's Daughters. Tonight the kiddies will be given another entertainment, and receive more gifts, from the Milford Center grange and Friday evening the Marysville Kiwanis club will provide a third program and more presents for them.

As the world grows tenderer, you see that doesn't lessen murder by those who want to commit it.

M. E. CHURCH IS SCENE OF CONCERT

Well Balanced Offering Includes Music Appropriate to Christmas

CHORUS SINGS

Mrs. William Unger Is Director of Organization Formed Eight Years Ago

BUCYRUS, Dec. 20—Members of the Bucyrus Music club opened the eighth season with a concert recital at First Methodist Episcopal church, Wednesday night, with local music lovers comfortably filling the church. For the initial offering a well-balanced program had been arranged and while not entirely given over to the Christmas scheme, the concert included a goodly number of songs or arrangements significant of the Christmas tide.

Mrs. A. M. Jones, who presided at the organ during the program, played as an effective prelude, "Silent Night," Harker, followed by two chorus numbers, "Praise to the Lord," Christsen, and "When Jesus Was a Little Child," Tchaikowsky.

"Adeste Fidiles" arranged by Novello, was sung by the chorus with solo, duet, trio and quartet parts taken by Mrs. E. N. Deitrich, Mrs. Ruth Heiber, Frank Assenheimer and C. L. Kantzer.

"Slumber Song of the Infant Jesus," Gevaert, arranged for an octet was sung by Miss Helen Jones and Mrs. John D. Zook, sopranos; Miss Ruth Heiber and Miss Kathryn Meek, altos; F. L. Neiderheiser, tenor and Howard Schieber and Edgar Heiber, basses.

Men's Chorus Sings

Dvorak's "Going Home," was sung by the chorus with soprano solo by Mrs. John D. Zook, and trio by Mrs. Zook, Miss Ella Meek and Frank Assenheimer. "Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C Sharp Minor" was played by Mrs. Jones at the organ and Miss Ruth Ludwig at the piano.

"Seraphic Song," by Rubenstein, with choral paraphrase by Samuel Richard Gaines, was sung by a chorus of ladies voices, with Miss Ella Meek singing the contralto solo and violin obligato by Miss Ione Hertzer.

Mrs. Zook sung the soprano solo of "Silent Night," arranged by Camp, which was offered by the Men's chorus.

The program was brought to a close by Gaynert's "A Joyous Christmas Song," sung by the full chorus. Mrs. Lillian Unger the club conductor, directed, and the accompanists were Mrs. A. M. Jones, organ, Mrs. Joseph Wise, and Miss Ruth Ludwig, piano, Miss Ione Hertzer, violin. Mrs. J. D Zook is the club president.

Carry Cold Relief On Your Handkerchief

There's no use allowing cold to dull your senses, keep you stuffed-up miserable, half-sick and weak, nowadays, when thousands are being amazed by the quick way this new discovery clears up the nasal passages, soothes the irritated, inflamed mucous membranes and relieves colds, hoarseness coughs, nasal catarrh, and even headaches from any cause.

There's no waiting for results from "Arome," as this marvelous refreshant it called. It acts directly on the affected parts. No waiting for tablets or powders to be absorbed by the system. "Arome" is an aromatic liquid, which vaporizes as you breathe it in through nose and mouth.

"Arome" is so easy to use anywhere at any time. All you need do is put a few drops on your handkerchief before you leave home. It is so highly concentrated that it keeps its effectiveness all day. You just keep breathing it in at intervals, as you think of it, until your cough, cold, hoarseness, or headache is completely relieved. Or you can easily carry the handy, 50c vial in purse or pocket.

Doctors say, breathing "Arome" forms an oily film of protection on the delicate mucous lining which makes you practically immune to outside infection from colds. So it is a good plan to carry a little on your handkerchief when going out to large gatherings. All druggists recommend and guarantee it.—Adv.

COUNTY BASKETBALL HIT BY FLU

NO GAMES SLATED FOR MARION COURT FIVES FRIDAY NIGHT

Christmas To Be Dull in Sport Circles; Three Frays Next Week

MARION county gyms will be dark this week-end and the usual activity from games in the high school league will not be in evidence in Marion no games are scheduled Friday or Saturday nights by the league teams

Most of the inactivity can be blamed on the flu that is sweeping over the county Dr N Sisler county health commissioner has called off all sport events outside of Marion and it is not known whether or not the ban will be lifted to permit teams to play next week Much depends on the course taken by the flu epidemic over the week end

One game is not blamed for the layoff Harding high cagers this week was to have been scheduled for Friday night by the faculty managers

FLU in Kenton led to the St Marys St Anthony clash being called off Friday night at the Y M C A being called off A number of the St Anthony players are reported out with the disease

The Eagles Heidelberg contest slated for last night in Star auditorium was called off on account of the flu It was reported that the Tiffin college five was hard hit by the epidemic

Christmas will be dead as far as sport activities are concerned Those having entertainment on Christmas eve and night will have to look somewhere else

HOWEVER Star auditorium will be exceptionally busy after Christmas Starting Wednesday three games are scheduled for the latter part of the week

On Wednesday night the Eagles will take on their toughest assignment of the season meeting the Robert Lee cagers of Columbus The Robert Lees rank as the outstanding professional team of the state being beaten but a few times last season The best teams of the American basketball league were regular victims of the Columbus attack

The annual Alumni battle will hold forth in Harding high school on Dec 28 This contest is scheduled as the feature for Thursday night

Industrial league contests will not be played on Monday as usually scheduled but have been changed to Friday night when three games will be played

AMERICAN LEAGUE SUPER PLAYERS

Every year the official compiler of averages comes out with the final story on what the athletes did during their Summer of pastiming Here are the four American leaguers upon whom most of the superlatives were heaped Left to right Buddy Myer who stole 30 bases and leads the circuit in that respect Babe Ruth who got the most homers 54 and the most runs, 163 Goose Goslin leading batsman in the percentage column, and Ernie Manush who came within one point of tying the champ

Braxton, Senators, Leads American League Pitchers

IT may be a bit surprising, to followers of baseball to know that Garland Braxton of the Washington club was the leading pitcher of 1928 in the American league The record as compiled show that the Washington hurler was the most effective of them all allowing only 2.72 runs per nine innings though the records also show that he was credited with winning only 13 games and charged with the loss of 11

Braxton was in 38 games and he pitched 256 innings and held opponents to 78 runs only 61 of which were earned On numerous occasions he was used for relief purposes seven times he was credited with saves He gave 41 bases on balls and fanned 91 batsmen

Only a little Cuban man was the veteran southpaw Herb Pennock of the Yankees who was in 28 games and allowed 2.71 runs per nine innings and allowed 40 earned runs gave 40 bases on balls and fanned 53 men His record shows credit for winning 17 games and he is charged with the loss of only six

One of the outstanding pitchers of the year was Bob Grove the speedy left hander of the Philadelphia Athletics who finished third in effectiveness with 2.58 and made a record of winning 21 games and losing only eight He pitched 262 innings and his opponents scored 91 runs only 75 of which were earned He led the league in strikeouts with a total of 183

John Major former Polish ruler had a record of winning seven and losing four games for Cleveland and he was next to Grove in effectiveness with 2.85 but he was in only 31 games and pitched only 211 innings Lee veteran Sam Rice of Washington formerly of New York and St Louis was up among the leaders with a batting of 284 He was in 152 games of ball and won 17 and lost seven Joe Quinn another old timer had a record of 2.90 and won 18 and lost seven games for Philadelphia

Waite Hoyt of the Yankees rounded the leading pitcher of the year in the league in point of winning 21 games and losing only seven and twelfth in effectiveness with 3.37 runs per nine innings

The iron man of the league was George Pipgras of the Yankees who pitched 301 innings of baseball He won 24 and lost 13 games and in 37 efforts had a record of 18 runs per nine innings He fanned 139 batsmen during the season and gave more bases on balls than anyone 101

Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig the great twins of the champion New York Yankees, were responsible for the most runs during the 1928 American League campaign according to the official figures Ruth and Gehrig were each responsible for 142 runs

Bob Meusel team mate of the famous pair finished third Ernie Manush of St Louis Al Simmons of the Athletics and Harry Heilmann of Detroit were next in line

Again Ruth was given the most free passes Pitchers gave the Bambino 137 walks during the season First Baseman Blue of the Browns followed Ruth with 105 walks in 154 games Gehrig ranked third with 95 passes in 154 games

In addition to garnering the above honors Ruth was the biggest strikeout victim He fanned 87 times in 361 games of ball Gehrig followed with 63 whiffs and Meusel came third with 50 in 131 games Joe Sewell of Cleveland was the toughest batter in the league in the matter of strikeouts having fanned only nine times in 355 games

Bing Miller of the Athletics and Oswald Bluege of the Senators were tied in the manner of hit batsmen Each were nicked eight times

JACK DEMPSEY TO FIGHT FOR RICKARD IN MID-SEPTEMBER

Tex, in Interview, Admits Coming to Terms with Former Champ

BY DAVIS J WALSH

NEW YORK, Dec 20—Jack Dempsey will fight once more for the heavyweight championship of the world in mid-September next and his opponent will be any one of four men, namely Paulino, Young Stribling Jack Sharkey or Tommy Loughran

This was the story behind Rickard's quoted interview today in which the promoter admitted he had agreed on terms with Dempsey that the latter would fight only once this year and that the public beyond question would recognize the winner of this fight as the champion The interview was one of those off the record affairs which stay out of the records but not out of the newspapers

Dempsey and Rickard will meet in Miami Fla during the first week in January and pull fists arrive at an understanding Their arrival already has been contrived privately even to the minimum purse and the type of opponent that will be adequate The latter of course cannot be determined in advance but the story is that both Rickard and Dempsey believe the other man in there when the time comes will be one of the four named

ANOTHER agreement tentatively arrived at was the date Rickard always has favored a September evening for his big shots and this one won't be small Dempsey's percentage alone should be worth $1,500,000 at the turnstiles The only thing Dempsey is understood to have demanded in addition to plenty of money is plenty of time He wants to make haste not gradually in his preparation and the sports are out with him

While Rickard has his guard down he named eight candidates who will start in the 1929 elimination tourney The four mentioned Loughran Paulino Sharkey and Stribling are naturals The other four will be Johnny Risko the man who didn't Phillip Scott the man who won't Roberto Roberti the man who hasn't and Thomas Heeney the man who can't Just what is to be done about getting the eight gentlemen in question better acquainted Mister Rickard neglected to state

In fact he was all wrought up over Mister Sharkey's tremendous shout his management of Dempsey Loughran and Stribling and in his perturbation he was prodigal of generalities and parsimonious of details The man simply was in a high dudgeon and it was this state of affairs that caused him to break down and confess all about Dempsey

Nation-Wide Over-Night Buying Sends Stock Prices Upward

TRADERS IN MARKET FOR COPPER STOCKS

Bears Chased Again as Bulls Score in Specialties

BRIGGS LOWER

Steel Interests After Shares of Central Alloy Company

BULLETIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—Industrial stocks sold higher today, in spite of the tighter money market and the fairly heavy withdrawal of funds from the call loan market. With few exceptions the high priced specialties have won back all the ground lost in the mid-December break, and average prices have already risen to the level of the Nov. 30 peak.

BY W. S. COUSINS

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 — Once more the "country was heard from" in the shape of a mod accumulation of mid-day buying orders for the rails stocks and prices were all higher at the start of the new day.

Chicago was buying Sinclair Oil, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck and other specialties, according to inside brokerage house reports, Detroit after the motor stocks, buying liberally of Packard, General Motors and Briggs. Big Inland steel orders were in the market for Central Alloy Steel, the first sale of which was for a block of 22,000.

Bulls rode rough shod over bears in the high-priced specialties, marking up prices on Victor Talking Machine and Radio, while U. S. Chemical soared another five points to $1 1-2.

With copper trade heads talking 17 cents a pound for copper early in 1929 and most of the copper companies making money at the fastest rate since the close of the war, special traders are still in the market for copper stocks. The favorites are Kennecott, Greene Cananea, Calumet and Anaconda.

Business Manufacturing was snapped back sharply to 51 1-2 today, the index having come back nearly 10 points from the low of the recent reaction in prices. Briggs tumbled last month from 62 to 42, but recovered the first half of its loss in double-quick time. Stewart-Warner was also strong today.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 20—Considering the bullish construction placed on the government estimate of Winter acreage, the wheat market held to a narrow range yesterday. Bears took advantage of the expected opening upturn which led to the anticipated flood of offerings, but they failed to gauge the lightness of trade and oversold the market.

Short covering ensued and prices went above the previous high of the day, but on this upturn Northwest selling appeared and prices again dropped just before the closing gong. However, net advances of 3 1-4@7-8c were made.

Following some early commission house selling, trade in corn was largely a local affair. Buying against purchases checked the early decline and short covering appeared with the little technical bulge in wheat. Prices closed with gains of 1-8@1-4c.

Oats firmed up with the other grains, finishing unchanged to 5-8c up. Rye was the strongest of the list, registering advances of 1 1-4@1 3-8c. Winnipeg wheat futures were 1-2@3-4c higher at the close.

Aside from the oversold condition in the wheat market which developed on the decline, trading went along about as expected, with the upturn on the bullish report meeting increased offerings. The bulk of the transactions continued of a professional nature and volume of trade was very light. Judging from the trade on privileges last night, the same sort of market is expected today.

While the December delivery, which weakened sharply the previous day, was easy at times yesterday under the influence of deliveries of 218,000 bu, an unexpected display of strength in the local spot market offset the heaviness and the spread between the December and the May had not increased at the close. For the first time this month a small amount of hard wheat was delivered; a surprise in view of existing premiums on this variety.

Sales of 104,000 bu of wheat from the local spot market to millers, here and outside, and similar sales of 50,000 bu from Manitowoc were the features of the cash trade. Trading basis and prices were nominally unchanged.

Domestic and Canadian weather conditions are reported as satisfactory for the new crop.

Corn trading was very quiet, as the very light interest now in grains centered about what following the government report. There is still a comparatively large open interest in the December, a situation which has led to caution in pressing the market. With lack of interest on the buying side, prices have been holding around their present level for some time.

Shorts Nervous

That shorts are nervous, though, was shown yesterday by the ease with which the market rallied with the little upturn in wheat.

Commercial demand for cash corn was still good in all the principal markets. Export demand, which is usually the principal factor in upward revision of prices at this time of year was very quiet, due to dull holiday trade in those circles.

In the cash market wheat was steady, corn unchanged, oats steady, rye firm and barley steady. Cars inspected were: Wheat, 7; corn, 120; oats, 31; rye, 4; barley, 14.

Happily for most married couples, only one of the two has the sulks at the same time.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Many price changes, seven in all, were recorded on quiet markets of the city this morning. A variation in the price of eggs was also recorded. No variations from yesterday's quotations were reported on either fruits or vegetables.

Six of the seven price changes on meats were decreases from former quotations. Eggs decreased in price.

Smoked hams dropped from 25 and 28c cuts a pound to 22 and 25 cents. Sausage fell from the former quotation of 17 cents a pound to 15 cents. Hamburg decreased from 23 cents a pound to 18 cents.

Bacon, formerly quoted at 25 to 30 cents a pound is now being sold at 20 to 25 cents. Cali'e hams fell from 22 cents a pound to 18 cents. Pork liver dropped from 15 cents a pound to 12½ cents.

Dressed chickens rose in price from 30 to 32 cents a pound to 32 to 38 cents.

Eggs dropped five cents in price. The former quotation was 43 to 50 cents a dozen while they are now being sold at 40 to 45 cents.

PAIR IS CHARGED WITH SETTING FIRE TO CHURCH

WASHINGTON, C. H., Dec. 20—Hollis Howen, 21, and Elmer Henlington, 19, are being held in the county jail here today in default of $5,000 and $1,000 bonds, respectively, on charges of having set fire to a Methodist church at Camp Grove, near here. When arraigned before Justice of the Peace Dewees both entered pleas of not guilty and were bound over to the grand jury.

They were arrested yesterday by Deputy Pipp Marshal S. Patterson at their home in Guyandott, near Ironton. It is alleged the men built a fire on a piece of tin while "prospecting" in the church and that when they left they failed to extinguish the fire. The church was destroyed as a result.

Discretion is what we use to cool off enthusiasm.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Own Your Own Home

THE man or woman, in whose mind the word "Home" does not awaken fond and sacred memories is to be pitied.
"Home"—the cradle of infancy, the haven of childhood, the school of youth, the refuge of maturity and the comfort of old age.
Around it are woven the most tender memories, the most sacred thoughts the most enjoyable experiences, the most solid comfort and the happiest of dreams.
Why water some other man's lawn? Why train vines to crawl upon walls that you do not own?

AIDS SANTA CLAUS

Weatherman Shows Signs of Producing Ideal Christmas Setting

That the weatherman is working with Santa Claus was the belief here today when weather prediction for tonight was given as slightly colder Partly cloudy weather is predicted for Friday however

While no decided drop in the temperature was apparent here in the past few days of early icy continues to be slightly colder than the preceding one Marionites will enjoy real Christmas weather this year—perhaps with snow

Yesterday the mercury went to 40 degrees but dropped to the 26 degree mark last night Temperatures a year ago were somewhat lower, a 52 degree high and 28 degree low having been recorded for this station

While unusually high for the time of year temperatures here yesterday were lower than the preceding day, when a high of 52 degrees and low of 29 were recorded
